The President Reports . . .

A very Happy New Year to you and a most special "Thank You" to the many friends who remembered Mrs. H and me with some of the most attractive Christmas cards either of us ever received.

There is another special "Thank you" to LaBelle Industries, a Sustaining Member who adds to regular advertising in The Journal by supplying slides for the Recorded Lectures program and provides the "LaBelle Award" for outstanding contribution to color photography. The occasion is their giving PSA membership to their entire national sales force as a Christmas present. We are all grateful to LaBelle both for their fine gesture and especially for the idea behind it.

Elsewhere in this issue you will find a very important new feature, a new kind of "Want Ad". It will be used by the Chairmen of the various active committees to broadcast their need of help and to explain just what the jobs involve. For a long time, there have been many PSA'ers looking for worthwhile jobs in the Society while other PSA'ers desperately needed just what they have to offer, but there was no good way to get them together. We all hope that the new "Want ads" will result in more aid for those who need it so badly and the new interest and satisfaction that comes from a definite part in PSA activity.

PSA Honors are granted after careful examination by the Honors Committee, but they cannot grant Honors unless an application has been made to them. There are Committees in each Division whose duty it is to seek out their members who deserve Honors, but it is also the duty of each PSA'er to make sure an application is made for those he believes should be so honored. If you know some PSA'er who you think should have an application made for him, write Headquarters for the blanks and then make sure they are properly and completely filled out and returned to Headquarters on time. The deadline is April 15—the last day Headquarters can receive them. Even though you may wish the application to go through your Division Proposal Committee, mail the completed application to Headquarters.

Now for my own angle on things as we go into this new 1954: PSA is moving ahead as never before in my limited experience, and it will move even faster if we all keep up the good work. Don't forget "Every Member Get the RIGHT Member!"

NORRIS HADENESS

Ed. Note: We're stealing an inch or so off the President's column to warn you about a very important change which will take effect next month. It involves the cover of the Journal and it may make it necessary to steal some lines from this column every month for part of the Table of Contents. We'll be putting the covers to press two weeks before the rest of the Journal and at that time the page location of lots of the items will not be known. Our present plan is to list on the cover only the big feature articles and put all the Department and News listings in this space.

how would you build your ideal camera? What basic features would you like? To test yourself, try this quiz:

1. How would you improve the handling of films?
2. What operating speed and refinements would you want? 3. What optical range? 4. What else? Now see some answers below. And be sure to see the great new 2 1/4" x 2 1/4" Swedish reflex, the HASSELBLAD 1000F.

PRICE: Hasselblad 1000F with 80mm Kodak Ektar f/2.8 lens and roll-film magazine.$399.50

Also available HASSELBLAD 1600F with speeds up to 1/1600th of a second.$499.50 and some answers:

1 FILM RANGE: Interchangeable roll-film magazines permit an instant switch from one kind of film to another . . . even in the middle of a roll.

2 OPERATING RANGE: The shutter stops action at a dazzling 1/1000 second. A single knob dials your speed, advances film, cocks shutter, counts exposures.

3 OPTICAL RANGE: Interchangeable lenses and extension tubes provide a picture-taking range from actual-size close-ups to telephoto shots.

PSA travelers

Dear Don:

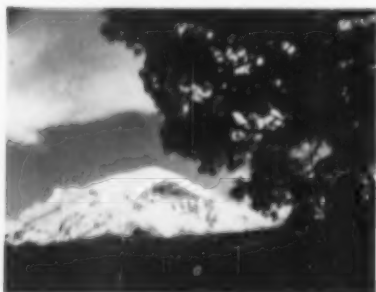

You asked me to take pictures of any of the PSAers I might guide around Mexico. I am sending you several from which to pick.

Miller, DeShazo, DeMoya

The first party of PSA friends consisted of J. Muz Miller, APSA and Don De Shazo, PSA, both of La Grange, Ill., Rafael Queralto, PSA, of Havana, and myself.

The spot we chose to visit was the volcanoes Popocatepetl (the mountain that smokes), and Ixtacihuatl (the sleeping woman), both about 90 km. (55 miles from Mexico City).

Popocatepetl

It was quite an interesting trip, good roads, well graded and safe, but sometimes a little rough and dusty. At kilometer 86 we ran out of gas and had to push until we could coast down grade to Amecamecal!

At times you will pass through green tunnels broken only by the clarío-oscuro of the sun filtering through the leaves. These tunnels are made by the trees along the roadway which have joined their branches overhead. At other times you see both volcanoes in their full glory, and so close that it seems you can touch them with your hand. Again you will see different views of the Valley of Mexico with all its gorgeous beauty at every turn of the road.

When you reach the snow line, which is some 15,000 feet above the sea, you will find a wide level space where you can camp and take a drink—if you brought it with you.

The best time to make the trip is in the summer when the snow is plentiful and comes down to the camp site—if you are lucky you will enjoy the luxury of a snowfall in the tropics during the month of July!

Angel De Moya

Temporary move

Dear Don:

I am taking a two-month leave of absence and will be in California all during December and January. I'll be trying to dig up some nature stuff out there and the ND folks can send news for the column to me in care of D. H. Ackley, 203 S. Norfolk, San Mateo, California.

Willard H. Farr, APSA

Egyptologists. Attention!

Dear Sir:

The University of Chicago Expedition here at Luxor is copying the scenes from the walls of certain temples hereabouts, a task we have been working on for 30 years. We have about 8-10,000 negatives, a third 5x7, the rest 8x10. I get little time for personal photography.

However, should any PSA members be visiting Luxor between the middle of October and the middle of April any time in the next few years I would be happy to have them stop by and say "hello." Egypt is a good place for photography, for it is never cloudy (well, almost never—a German photographer spent a week here last spring and couldn't get any sunshine, but that happens only one week in every several years in Luxor.)

Exhibition reports

Dear Sir:

I have done quite a bit of studying in an attempt to improve my work. I have sent several slide entries to salons and a situation has arisen which makes me write you this letter.

I sent four slides to the — Salon and received a card from them that merely stated the entries had or had not been accepted or rejected. Nothing was stated as to the points given each of the slides by the judges. This means that I have gotten absolutely no good from the trouble and expense of entering these slides. The only way in which I receive any real good is to be advised as to the score each slide made. I do not know whether the rules governing salons require that this information be furnished to entrants, but they should.

Only a comparatively few entries can receive the medals and awards, therefore if the entrant is to derive any benefit he should be advised of his standing.

I would like to suggest to whoever is in charge of salon competitions for PSA that this be included in the rules.

C.W.G.
(name withheld)

Iowa

This subject has been covered in several recent letters and one outcome was the article in the December Journal describing how the Minneapolis Color show does this very thing.

PSA doesn't set salon rules. The salons do that. PSA does have rules covering recognition but there is a question whether the Society should go so far as to detail methods of reporting. There are two groups to be considered, those who wish to use exhibitions as a means of evaluating their work and learning therefrom, and those who are anxious to roll up an exhibition score. Your Editor feels that both groups would benefit from a score-reporting system such as is used by Minneapolis and several other shows.

If you want to spread the scoring idea, submit only to those shows which state on their prospectus that they do give a full report on the scoring and also the minimum score required for acceptance. That is a negative approach. A positive approach would be, in writing for entry forms, to state that "I submit entries only to salons which provide a full report of the scoring of my entries by the judges." If enough serious workers did this, the salons would soon be forced to play ball or quit.

You can be sure that the Color Division officers will give serious attention to your complaint, but they have many angles to consider and it may take some time to get such a requirement posted. The salons or exhibitions are entitled to one or two year's warning of the change in rules, because many of them plan that far ahead.

Color chairmen, please note!

Dear Don:

Why, when numbering slides for an exhibit do they put the numbering sticker over the present projection sticker? Can't the numbering sticker be placed elsewhere on the slide to serve the same purpose?

When the exhibitor gets the slides back and attempts to remove the numbering sticker, it usually takes off the projection dot and the title strip as well. This necessitates

Your Journal

This is another in the series of brief articles on how your Journal gets to you, the many hands that contribute to getting it out each month.

About two years ago the Board of Directors decided that a full-time advertising manager was needed in order to keep the Journal full of ads and to defray as much of the cost from direct income as possible. Vincent Rocca, a young but experienced advertising man was employed and he makes his headquarters in Pres. Harkness' office in New York, handy to all the advertising agencies and many of the manufacturers and importers of photographic equipment. He spends his full time at the job and does all the selling and advertising production without assistance. Most commercial magazines employ four or more people to do the same job.

In the recent reader survey one member wrote "why don't you have more advertising?" One reason is that some of the advertisers still need convincing that PSAers can best be reached through their own publication and that PSAers are the photographic leaders in their communities. Many advertisers check the pulling power of their ads through "keys". A "key" is a department number or a special address. If you use that key in writing to one of our advertisers then he knows his ad in the Journal is being read. You'll notice we also have a slogan at the bottom of each page "When writing advertisers please mention the Journal." That is important. It might easily be rephrased "When writing non-advertisers, please ask them why they don't use the Journal!"

Mr. Rocca is careful about the type of ads accepted for the Journal. We feel our first responsibility is to protect our members from fraudulent ads, income must come second. And since many dealers are members in good standing we don't accept ads from competing dealers whose copy reads like a bargain basement sale. Not that we want to protect our dealer members from cut-price competition, although that is a part of it, frankly, it is that we know a dealer cannot tender the type of service we as photographers require of him if his prime concern is to make a quick sale and rapid turnover. So if you do see an ad in the Journal from a retail dealer, a camera shop, you know he has met and passed rigid requirements.

One word of caution—if you receive in the mail advertisements from a mail-order dealer, addressed to you in the same style used in our Membership Directory, that does not mean that PSA has given him permission to use the list, nor does it mean approval by PSA of the dealer. It simply means that he has paid $10 to become a member and get a copy of the Directory.

If you want to help the Journal achieve a leading position as an advertising medium, you can do so by always using the address of advertisers as printed in the Journal, and by taking advantage of their offers of literature or help. Such offers are another way of testing and it is to your interest to see that the advertiser gets a fair indication of member interest in the Journal.

Next Month—The Editors

CANADIANA

by REX FROST, APSA

Director, Canadian Zone

Manitoba's Splendid Lead

Until recently, Manitoba had fewer members of P.S.A. than any other Province of Canada with the exception of Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland. As of January 1st 1953 there were only three private P.S.A.'ers in the Prairie Province plus one Club membership, the Manitoba Camera Club.

It seems however that with Ed. Matthews at the helm of a drive to put the Society on the map in the central province, great things may be expected.

Ed Matthews, apart from being Vice Pres. of the Manitoba Camera Club is also P.S.A.'s Provincial Representative in the locality. In a two page spread of the Club's magazine, Ed is going all out to stimulate interest in P.S.A.

The first page goes something like this:
IT'S YOUR SOCIETY!!

If you are a camera fan, a professional photographer, a scientist, teacher, businessman or industrialist interested in photography, the P.S.A. is the Society for you. That's because the P.S.A. is representative of the best in all photography . . . It is working for the good of all photography, and there's room in its membership for everyone who wants to lead a richer, more complete and more satisfying photographic life . . . THE PICTORIAL DIVISION. Whether you're a beginner seeking advice, help and encouragement, or a fully-fledged photographer, you'll get lots of satisfaction from membership in the Pictorial Division. This Division sponsors . . . etc. . . etc. . . etc. . . each year it presents . . . etc. . . etc. . . etc. . . If you need help in scaling the heights of good photography, the Pictorial Division can provide etc. . . etc. . . etc. . . your questions are welcome . . . see me at the Club, or phone 422111 evenings only . . ."

These are but brief excerpts illustrating how Ed. Matthews is going about the responsibility of building goodwill and membership for the Society in Canada's mid-section. Take a bow Ed. You're setting a fine example for other P.R.'s to follow.

Salonitis

Jim McVie of Victoria B.C. reports that photographers from 28 countries submitted a total of 1,425 prints and 865 slides to Victoria's 1953 International Salon, believed to be the largest entry ever received in any such event in Canadian Camera Club history. It was Victoria's 13th Annual. Not a "lucky" 13th, but rather the "hard working, enthusiastic" 13th, with the drive and energy of Salon Director Jim McV. providing the impulse. As a garnish for the Coronation Year Salon an exhibit of portraits of the Royal Family by the renowned British Photographers Dorothy Wilding and Baron, were incorporated in the Empress Hotel, V.C.C. event.

As a result of arrangements recently made between Canadian Salon Secretaries, it will be possible with a single set of prints to cover at least five Salons across country. 1954 entries submitted to the Edmonton International may be automatically reforwarded to Vancouver and Victoria, and thence in rotation to Montreal and Toronto Salons.

At the same time Wally Wood of Montreal has been continuing his already persistent efforts to have much of the red tape of Canada's customs cut to a minimum. Correspondence and conversations between Wally and the bigwigs of the customs department aim to standardize and simplify import and "in bond" procedure across the country, in relation to prints and slides entered in Canadian salons from abroad. Latest information suggests that some progress is being made in the effort to induce the Customs officials to relax regulations which have been the bane of every Salon Director's existence since way back when.

Canadian Zone PSA Program Service

As indicated in earlier issues of the Journal the Canadian zone programming service is well under way. Six shows have been arranged, and will be in circulation by the time this appears in print.

Wally Wood, National Program Co-ordinator needs several more shows immediately. Understandably six shows spread over the vastness of the Canadian countryside spreads the service mighty thin. To give effective coverage to the numerous Clubs who desire to take advantage of the new service, twenty programs, comprising ten print shows and ten color slide shows are a minimum necessity during the first six months of 1954.

Requirements are a group of 20 to 25 prints and 50 to 75 color slides, together with a scripted commentary which can be sent out with each set. Will Provincial Representatives please endeavor to get the support of the top ranking photographers in their localities in loaning prints and transparencies with which to augment the present service? Wally Wood at 500 Dominion Square Building in Montreal is sitting hopefully in his office waiting for those letters to inform him that you are giving him your cooperation in making the new Canadian Zone PSA Program Service an invaluable supplement to those presently available from across the border.

Tape magazine

The new Rowan-Mooney publication, Tape & Film Recording, published by the former staff of Camera, George Rowan and Mark Mooney, made its bow on the stands early last month. Vol. 1, No. 1 reveals the skill and publishing experience of the editors and future issues promise to maintain the high quality set by the first edition. It is published by Mooney-Rowan Publications, Severna Park, Md.

NATIONAL LECTURE PROGRAM

PSA Clubs
To afford clubs in smaller cities, who do not have a pool of speaker talent available as do the clubs in large centers, the opportunity to hear good speakers, the NLP plans tours by a speaker in such a way that the traveling costs, when pro-rated among the clubs, are low enough that most clubs can afford them, especially if they sell tickets for the lecture to the general public. These tours are planned long in advance and ample notice is given in the Journal. For details:

JUDGING SERVICE

CD Clubs
Color Division has a judging service for both color prints and slides for clubs which are more or less isolated from qualified judges. A reasonable length of time should be permitted for judging and sufficient advance notice given when this service is requested. For information write to the Committee Members who distribute the Exhibition Sets.

CAMERA CLUB COMMITTEE

PSA Clubs
A committee with representation on the PSA Board, to coordinate and provide services and activities of camera club interest, from either within or without PSA. Publishes a Bulletin for member clubs.

LA BELLE AWARD

CD All
Awarded each year by the Color Division to a person, group or organization which has contributed to the advancement of color photography, not necessarily in the current year. An award committee is appointed by the CD Chairman to search out candidates and examine their qualifications.

STEREO SLIDE CIRCUITS

SD Ind.
Each member enters six slides which make the rounds of all those in the circuit. As the shipment of slides reaches each circuit member, he enters his comments on all slides and note what others say about his. Slides are voted on; ribbons awarded to winners. An instruction set of slides is circulated among members of the circuits. In charge:

INTERNATIONAL SLIDE SET EXCHANGE

CD Clubs
American slide makers may see the work being produced elsewhere in the world through a series of international exchanges begun in 1947. Sets from England and Japan are now circulating. Arrangements are being made with other foreign countries for additional sets. The Color Division sends a set of 50 American slides and receives sets of from 50 to 75 slides in exchange. These foreign sets are for circulation to clubs only and not to individuals. No cost to PSA clubs. Watch the Color Division bulletin for announcements stating when additional sets are available. Present sets are booked solid for entire length of time available to PSA clubs. For information write to:

FRANK B. BAYLESS
320 Cowell Avenue
Oil City, Pa.

EXHIBITION SLIDE SETS

CD Clubs
These are sets of 50 slides of exhibition quality, complete with comment sheets and sufficient for an instructive 1½ hour presentation. These slides are duplicates of high quality, made from accepted slides in international exhibitions. In order to minimize routing schedules, slides are distributed from three different points. Write to the point nearest you for requirements for borrowing these sets. (Alaska, Canada and Hawaii write to WEST Distributing Point). NO COST TO COLOR DIVISION CLUBS, other PSA Clubs pay $1 per set. Not available to Non-PSA Clubs.

CODING

At the start of this series we explained the coding used. The second line of each Service listing refers to the source of the service and who gets it. If the Code is PSA on the left and "All" on the right, then all PSA members, individuals and clubs get it. If it says CD and "Clubs", then only Color Division clubs get it. Please note that in general "salon" is used for PD activities, "exhibition" for CD. Both mean about the same thing.

How To Use The Directory

The first step in using your Directory is to put it in a safe place where you won't be able to find it until the 1955 Directory comes out. Then when you go to file that one, you'll find this one.

So if you want to use it before filing it safely away, you'll find that all organizational matters are in the front, followed by the alphabetical listing of every member who was a member on Nov. 1, 1953. It takes about three months of sane, normal operations to produce the Directory so we do it in six weeks.

Now if you don't know a PSA member in Possum Hollow, but you are going through there on a vacation jaunt of 3500 miles in two weeks, look way back, and listed under the proper state heading you may or may not find Possum Hollow. If there is a Possum Hollow in that state it may be listed, unless there is a PSA member there, in which case our proofreaders will have moved him to Sour Mash Corners. If by mistake, and mistakes will happen, you find him in the Index, you might also find him listed in the Alphabetical section under the closest alias. The Alphabetical listing will show you that he paid his dues (or he wouldn't be in!) and what Divisions he belongs to, which may or may not reveal his photographic interests. The date after his name is your license, to say to your self (if you are still on speaking terms) "Aha, why he is the veriest newcomer, I joined a year before he did." Thus feeling confident of your superiority you will plan to call on him unexpectedly at suppertime some night.

If you feel legally inclined you might also study the Constitution and By-Laws.

There is another use for the Directory that has occurred to no one for years. You can use it to find addresses of people who do the work in PSA. We confess you won't find them listed by their jobs. We had given some thought to listing all the people who do the work along with their jobs, like Director of Tibetan Portfolios, or Short Circuits of the Stereo Slide Circuits, but that would make life too easy. Especially when the Pictorial Digest lists all of them every month, and Stereo quarterly and others now and then, and since most of them ran this year on the PSA Services Pages of the Journal. So what you'll have to do, if you want to write to the Custodian of the Film Cement, is to address your letter to him in care of the Motion Picture Division Chairman, or the MPD Secretary, both of whom are listed by name and address in the list of Division personnel.

Or, if you have a question about the RLP you could send it to Phil Maples who is Chairman of that activity and he will see that the proper member of his committee gets it.

Now, if you don't know just what Division or Committee should get your inquiry, you address it to Johnny Appleseed in care of PSA Headquarters in Philadelphia and Johnny will see that the right party gets it promptly. Johnny will also answer your technical, operational and other questions by seeing that they get to the right party. His only rule is that each question be on a separate sheet of paper because he may have to send different questions to different ones of his staff of Helpers.

A serious word to you new members. You may think that because you are new in PSA that it would be quite nerve of you to write for help to other members, especially those with a string of honors after their names. Correct yourself immediately. You will find that all PSAers are friendly people and always glad to help out a new member, and confidentially, you'll find that the ones with the longest strings are by all odds most willing to help a newcomer, because in many cases, it is their spirit of wholehearted service that called those honors down on their heads.

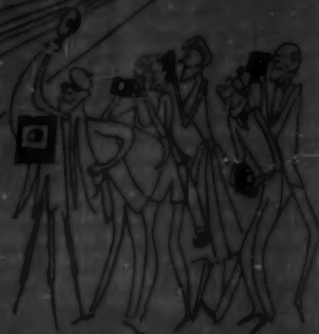

Next year we hope to indicate in the Geographical Index all those who are willing to volunteer information about their localities to PSA Travelers, but in the meantime, we are sure that if you write to anyone on the list for picture suggestions about his neighborhood, he'll be glad to help you and would most probably welcome a visit when you get over his way. Try it.

Mr. PSA Campaign Resumes

The Mr. PSA campaign for 1953 closed last July and as you all know, Red Dunnigan won the title and the trip to the Convention in Los Angeles. If you have been wondering if Mr. PSA was over, the answer is a resounding NO. Mr. PSA of 1954 will be picked from the champion signers-up of new members and there is only this slight change in the rules. . . . Get The Right Member. Quantity alone isn't enough . . . they must be quality and after you sign them up your job is to see that they become real PSAers, using the services and activities which PSA offers and taking their part as PSAers, active ones.

Members signed up since the Convention will count towards your Mr. (or Miss or Mrs.) PSA score, and we don't expect as many of them this year, because we expect you to take care of the ones you do sign up!

Johnny Appleseed's Mail Bag

Some letters this month, and a round-up in answer to a letter several months ago.

A mid-western club poses an interesting question:

"Would you please let the Club know just what pictorial pictures are?"

I mulled this over for a while, thought of about a thousand definitions, then decided to let Ray Miess take a crack at it. After all, the Chairman of the Pictorial Division should know that. And, by golly, he came through. Here's Ray's answer:

"A pictorial picture is one in which the maker, by means of his imagination, choice of subject matter, process and presentation, is able to evoke an emotional response in the mind of the person viewing it."

I like that. There it is, no quibbling, yet full freedom for your own interpretation, no restrictions to a particular style of photography, no peddling of a particular brand of apples. Ray, that definition is better than any of the thousand or more I tried to winnow.

Now to the other business in hand. Some months ago a member asked about holding big sheets of enlarging paper, especially for borderless prints. I got several letters and I've picked a few of them for this round-up. Some of my own ideas, too. Might mention that this member didn't want to buy a 16x20 easel.

You first must decide whether you want full-sized prints. The trim size of the paper manufacturer might not be just what you want and there is no magical formula that says a picture can't measure 15 1/2 x 19 1/2 instead of 16x20. But if you don't want to trim, then you need a paper holder that will hold the paper nearly flat yet not show the marks of the hold-downs you use.

On occasion I have used a sheet of glass larger than the paper. The only drawback to this is a slight contrast-flattening effect that is usually experienced. Also, a speck of airborne dust may settle during a long exposure and cause another spot.

Another idea which I have used is to make some lead hold-downs with a sharp point. I got the idea from the lead weights used by draftsmen, a tapered piece of lead weighing about half a pound with a needle protruding from the small end, and with a ridge or feet at the fat end so the weight is applied to the point. I cast them in a wood mold, using a one-inch brad for the needle, bending it to an L before using it. The slight shadow thrown by the brad is easily spotted out.

So much for mine . . . here's the other ideas:

Cy Yarrington, custodian of our pictorial Who's Who and noted exhibitor says: "Use thumbtacks? Heavens, no! For 14x17 paper buy a 16x21 drawing board and place at top and on two sides, suitable lengths of half inch picture frame molding. Leave bottom open for easy insertion of paper. Use one or more sheets of heavy cardboard to raise the paper close to the flange of the molding. For 16x20 prints, get a larger board. Simple, isn't it?"

Harold Hively of the renowned lumbering town of Ponchatoula, La., who interprets my FPSA to mean "Friend of Poor Suffering Amateurs" (and who should send some nice mill shots in to the PSA Traveler) puts his solution this way.

"I made an easel that is quite satisfactory as follows: Take a piece of masonite, 16x19 for 14x17 prints, and around the edges nail narrow strips about 3/8" thick, squaring one of the corners. On the underside of the Masonite I nailed three ribs. Bought two one-pound cans of Hektograph Refill Composition, No. 280, and melted this material in accordance with directions, pouring it in the reservoir formed by the strips around the edge of the masonite. Allow it to stand a few hours beyond the time specified before using. For a 16x20 easel perhaps three cans will be enough. The Hektograph material is made by the Hever Corp. of Chicago and is carried by most office supply stores. I keep the easel covered with cardboard when not in use."

Then from way out west, A. Frank Procter of The Dalles, Ore., comes up with two ideas. He suggests cutting out a couple of right-angled slugs of lead or other heavy metal and use them at opposite corners. He also quotes a formula for a stickyback compound that was published in "Everybody's Photography Manual" published by Popular Science. This is basically a gelatin-glycerin mixture with Karo syrup. It has the faculty of absorbing moisture from the surrounding atmosphere and staying slightly sticky, or if it does dry, it can be renewed with a damp cloth.

Now sometimes I'm a little lazy and don't like to go around mixing up something I can buy already made and probably made better than I can do it myself. His letter reminds me of a compound that Ansco makes for the use of engravers. These characters use odd-size films and their film holder is a big sheet of glass, which they coat with this compound that stays tacky. Ansco calls it Stay-Flat Solution and you can get it in clear or color. The clear is best for our purpose. Most dealers don't stock it unless they have graphic arts customers, but they can order it for you. A 16-oz. can will coat six 20x24 glass plates. You can spray it on with a flit-gun or flow it on and let it dry in a level position. Drying takes about 15 minutes. It can be cleaned off after it stops sticking with a little alcohol. Since you won't be using it as often as an engraver, I'd suggest that between times you cover it with a sheet of kitchen aluminum foil to retard drying out.

Blow-ups

Dear Johnny:

What kind of developer do the newspaper boys use that permit the enlargements they make without any grain? I'm using fine-grain developer but I can't seem to make my prints more than 2X.

C.C.

Omi.

I asked Bob Garland to answer this one, seeing as how he gets around the newspapers a lot and here is what Robin told C.C.:

Have you ever tried wiping a little vaseline on the emulsion side of the film before you try to enlarge it? After you've done that, wipe the excess off with a small swab of cotton. This trick was evolved in Life Magazine's lab and allows them to get away with blowups and reduces the graininess of the final print. I know from experience that it has worked well for me on large and small film, and that although the film looked like the devil it does not harm the film even after years of storage. Continue with your present snip.

What is a "Landscape"?

Dear Johnny:

Recently our club had quite a discussion pro and con in reference to our club's contest under the title of "Landscape". Could you give us a photographic definition of landscape? We would also like to know the specifications and diagrams recommended by PSA for print and slide boxes.

Ariz.

J.S.H.

Now this question sort of takes in all outdoors, doesn't it? Alright, it ain't punny!

According to my dictionary a landscape is "a view of scenery on land." I'll settle for that. If it has even a tiny bit of ocean in it then it's a seascape. Since scenery implies some scope, that would bar extremely close shots of details of the landscape to the exclusion of the scenery.

PSA has no specifications for print and slide boxes, but I've sent you a design by Harry Reich for a print box and you'll find a slide box in this issue.

Etchadine

Dear Johnny:

I am writing to you in search of information regarding "Etchadine". I have written several letters to the makers, Jamieson Products, 219 Avenue F, Redondo Beach, California, but they are returned as unclaimed.

I am anxious to obtain a kit for myself and several of my friends are also interested. Can you tell me if this or any other product of the same formula is at present available and the price, or can the formula be obtained for amateur purposes? R.V.L.

Australia

According to our information this firm is not in business any longer. Nor do I know the formula. Perhaps some reader can help. We'll be glad to forward the information.

Where to send?

Dear Johnny:

Where do we send prints for the Print of the Month competition? Prints for criticism, size and number?

To whom do we send color slides for the slide of the month competition? Slides for criticism, size and number?

C.F.H.

Illinois

Well Doc, the Print of the Month has been dropped as of the December contest, according to a statement by John Hogan in our December Journal. The International Club Print Competition is handled this year by Vernon N. Kuling, 2327 Creighton Ave, Baltimore 14, Md. Write him for information. The CC Print Judging Service is handled by Fred Bauer, Jr., 383 Monroe Ave., Memphis 3, Tenn. Both of these are Pictorial Division activities and are listed in the PD services bulletin and have been on the PSA Services page. The National Club Slide Competition is handled by Merle S. Ewell, APSA, 1422 W. 48th St., Los Angeles, California.

Questions unlimited

Dear Johnny:

You are good enough to devote your time to helping people with their photographic problems so maybe you will help us. We have placed each question on a separate sheet. (Questions below.) G.B.

Delaware

You followed the rules, George, each question on a separate sheet so they can be referred to various of my helpers, so some answers you get right away, some will take awhile.

Temperature for dissolving chemicals. Because our water supply has to settle 5 days to remove a suspended precipitate it is most convenient to use it at room temperature. Does this make any difference?

Only that it will take longer to dissolve the chemicals and you must make sure that each is thoroughly dissolved before adding the next. I would seriously suggest that with your problem you consider using distilled water (battery water) for solutions, the local water for washing, with a final rinse in distilled water.

May we dissolve metal and sulfite at the same time? It would save time. We have tried it with D-72 and apparently the results were the same. We have not risked it with D-76.

Good thing you didn't! D-76 has a much higher sulfite concentration. When metal is added to a concentrated sulfite solution there is a precipitation and apparently quinoid is formed, at least D-76 made that way is no longer a fine-grain developer. My practice has always been to dissolve a small portion of the sulfite, say 5 grams per liter, as a preservative before dissolving the metal, then add the rest of the sulfite.

How about pre-mixing hydroquinone and sulfite?

What do you gain by mixing dry chemicals? If you want to make split solutions and mix the solutions, that will work, but you accomplish nothing.

We have sensitive metric balances, the type sold for about $20 by supply houses. Are these accurate enough for photographic mixing? Is it cheaper to mix your own or to buy packaged chemicals?

Your scales are quite accurate enough for photo use. My scales are of the $8 variety and they are adequate. Your second question is the $64 one.

If you are going to use standard formulas without deviation, you might save a little by mixing your own. However, there have been many new developments in photographic chemistry and there are some additives now used in prepared formulas which it is not feasible to include in home-mixes. Either the quantity is so small that ordinary scales are not accurate enough or there is a technique of mixing beyond the average photographer. I am inclined to recommend the prepared liquid developers, although this is a reversal of my thinking only a few years ago. The new formulas really have some value.

Our school water supply has suspended clay in it so fine that it takes 5 days for it to settle before it can be filtered or decanted. What harmless preservative can be used?

You don't want a preservative. You want a coagulant. Photo-Lab-Index recommends 15 grains of potassium alum to a gallon of water. It should clear the water rapidly and it can be filtered or decanted. While this won't affect developers in this concentration, I'd still suggest distilled water for developers, toners and similar mixes, using the school water for filter and washing, with a final rinse in treated or distilled water.

Whoops!

Dear Johnny:

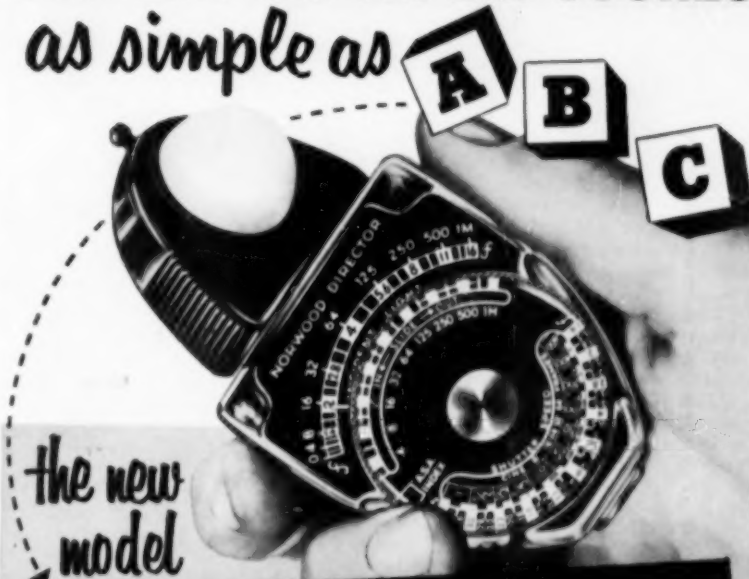

You mentioned the legal questions about photographing a house and using it commercially. Now whether you could or could not be legally guilty of exploitation or similar illegal use of a photo of a house, do not rely on permission of the OCCUPANT. The OWNER is the man to see. In several cases courts have ruled that tenants or employees are not competent to give permission, that right is reserved to the owner of the property.

David B. Eisenkrantz

N.Y.

Thanks Dave. I'm glad to have this correction, but don't you agree that since laws differ in every state that the person should get legal advice from an attorney in the state involved?

PERFECT COLOR EXPOSURES as simple as A B C

Keep The Dust Off Your Slides.

By Philip Brassine

Are your good slides laying in boxes and drawers? Does the thought of sending your slides to salons scare you? Do you feel the whole procedure is too complicated? Fear not. It is extremely simple and with a good mailing carton to protect those precious slides you can dig them out of the boxes and drawers and win honors for yourself. And don't feel reticent about sending them to salons. They are eager to receive your entry. Most salons work at a very close margin and even dig into the club's treasury to meet the costs, so the more entries they receive the better, and the better show they can produce.

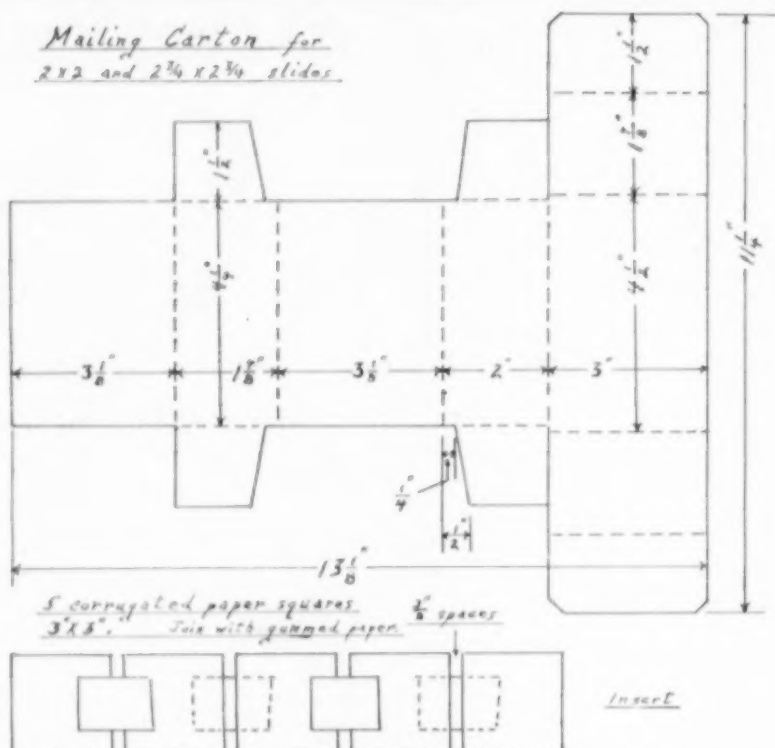

In the PSA Journal and other photo magazines you can find lists of coming salons accepting color slides. The closing dates for receiving entries are usually from one to three or more months from the issue date of the magazine. Select a salon whose closing date is at least a month away. Drop a 2-cent postcard in the mail to the name and address which states "for entry blanks and information write to, etc."

Some salons list the size mounts acceptable, others do not. There are fewer salons accepting the larger size mounts such as $2\frac{1}{2} \times 2\frac{1}{4}$ or $3\frac{1}{2} \times 1$. It would be helpful to everyone if the salons which accept these larger sizes listed them in their announcements.

While waiting for the entry blank get your slides in order. Although transparencies in readymounts are acceptable they are liable to damage by fingermarks or scratches since handling 3,000 to 5,000 slides does not permit one to give each slide the care you would your own. So it is best to bind them in glass. Do not bind the readymounts in glass as this makes the slide too thick to insert into most projectors, and the salons will not accept them in this fashion.

The transparency should be mounted between glass in either the "snap type" metal binders, fiber and glass or glass and tape. Regardless which is used the transparency should be fastened so that it will not shift around in the mount. This can be done by holding it with Scotch tape to the mask or frame. On glass and tape bound mounts the name, address and title can be placed on the mask, the whole thing then bound between glass. On the other types it is usually necessary to place this information on the outside of the mount. Personal labels are ideal for this purpose as well as being inexpensive. About 300 for $1.00. All type mounts will require a projection mark or tab in the Lower Left Hand corner when the slide is viewed in an upright position. The entry blank will instruct you how to number these slides, the numbers being printed on this projection mark. Gummed labels from the 5¢ and 10¢ store will serve nicely.

Mailing Carton for 2x2 and 2 1/4 x 2 1/4 slides

If you have never entered your slides in a salon or exhibition there can be only three reasons: 1. Lack of interest, 2. Fear of breaking the slides, 3. Lack of knowledge how to do it. This Workshop article is disguised propaganda if you are in class 2 or 3. (For those in class 1 there is no hope!) This easily made shipping carton will take your slides there and back, and the article tells you how to go about it. All we can say is: you don't know how fine the water is until you jump in, so jump.

Glass slides are subject to breakage so they should be well protected during mailing. A mailing carton and insert which has proven satisfactory for both 2x2 and $2\frac{1}{4} \times 2\frac{1}{4}$ glass slides is shown in the drawing. They are cut from corrugated paper boxes the local store parks the groceries in when doing the weekly shopping. A pattern can be made on thin cardboard and kept for future use, merely following the outline. The mailing carton is scored on the inside where the broken lines are drawn. The whole is then folded inward, making a strong compact carton. On boxes having printing etc. on them, the plain side should form the exterior of the mailing carton.

When you receive your entry blank read the instructions carefully. Fill in the information fully and exactly as requested. Most salons are conducted along similar lines and require similar information so you will soon get the hang of this. After completing the entry form and marking your slides you are ready for packing and mailing. The entry form may recommend that you send the form, self addressed labels and a dollar bill or check with the slides. In this case the package must be sent first class. It will weigh between five and seven ounces. If the carton is sent 4th class the entry form etc. will have to be sent by letter separately. Some salons request the entry form be sent to one address and the package to another. If the package is sent fourth class additional time must be allowed for it to reach the address before the closing date.

With everything packed inside the carton, fill the empty space with tissue paper, then seal the one edge and both ends with 2" gummed paper. Attach the label and mail in plenty of time to get in early. You're in the swim.

Another Method

Many new contributors to Colorslide Salons are doubtful about the proper packing of their entries. Some experienced entrants reach for the aspirin when a slide is broken in transit, and their improperly packed entries cause Salon Chairmen to have one of the same.

Some PSA Journal readers undoubtedly have developed their own methods of packaging, and if a few sent in their How-to-dos you could run them together, offering several alternatives. The standard method consists of using the box in which the slides are returned by the processors. We cut two pieces of corrugated paper $2\frac{1}{2} \times 4$ and insert one in the bottom of the box. We lay two glass-mounted slides flat upon this, then a piece of 2"x4" thin cardboard. We lay the other two slides upon this and cover them with the other piece of 2"x4" corrugated paper, then put the cover on the box, usually tacking it down with Scotch-tape. (The entry form and fee may be folded and included before covering.)

Now we cut a piece of corrugated paper 2 1/4"x6 3/4" and wrap it around the box and stick the ends together with tape, making a protective sleeve. This is wrapped in paper, sealed, labeled and mailed first-class for 12c.

Another Hanger Box

The article by Lester E. Plietz and its accompanying photograph showing a storage rack for developing hangers is excellent and I am sure will result in many of these handy gadgets being built.

About ten years ago I got this idea from somewhere except that mine is a light tight box, which to me is invaluable. I am enclosing a photograph I made of this box. In addition to the advantages listed by Mr. Plietz it has the following.

1. A dust proof storage space for the hangers.

2. A light tight box to load the hangers in after the undeveloped film has been placed in the hangers, and are then ready for the developer when you choose to take them from the box in the dark.

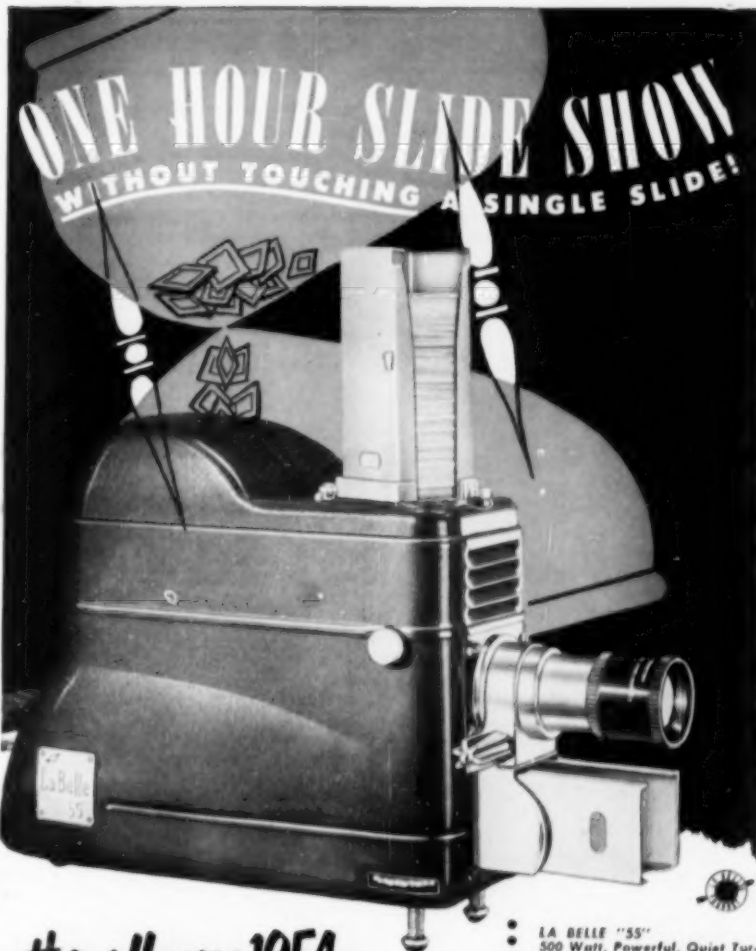

3. Often while placing film in the developing hangers in the dark that phone outside the darkroom will ring, or the front door bell, and many other interruptions, in which case all you have to do is to close down the light tight lid and turn on the white light in the dark room, or open the darkroom door and leave the darkroom. This to me is the most valuable asset of this box. It is easy to build from scrap wood and a little felt at the joints and a couple of dowel pins across inside the box on which the hangers rest. A latch in front will secure the box.

4. This box is also handy for placing roll film that is loose when you drop the end of the spool in the dark and can't find it, etc.

From the Pacific Northwest, Seattle, comes this interesting series contributed by a talented professional portraitist, teacher and exhibitor. What makes it outstanding is the fact that Que Chin actually illustrates the evolution of a portrait which has attained salon success. The print shown in #6 has been accepted by the professional P. A. of A. and the International Salons of Great Falls, Seattle, Vancouver and Northwest.

1. In first print, main light is 500-watt spot placed 45° to left of camera. Soft fill is a 75-watt fluorescent tube at opposite side. A 150-watt spot illuminates medium gray wall used as background.

With shoulders squared to camera, model appears unnaturally big. The symmetrical arrangement of hair adds to this effect. Position of face and lights accentuate depth of forehead, chin weakness and length of face.

2. Body has been turned sideways to give appearance of slimness but result is not flattering. Near shoulder is distorted and too much emphasis given it by its bareness. One shoulder highlighted and other in shadow (with hair merger) present body as unbalanced.

3. Pose has been altered slightly but little improvement is noted. Angle of head to shoulders makes it appear stiff and uncomfortable. Hair remains unruly.

4. With face turned to three quarter position, minimizing its length, we see first real improvement.

Main light is now at right of model with fill to right of lens. Because the latter is broad, its effect is noted on the shadow side of face. A 500-watt spot, from rear, illuminates hair. Its unflattering arrangement still draws too much attention.

5. To de-emphasize hair, it is decided to use low-key lighting. Inclusion and placement of hand has minimized weak chin and long neck. Tilt of head and animated expression convey to viewers a pleasing and sensuous feeling.

While this print has enjoyed salon acceptance, some may find right shoulder and high-lighted hairs along side of face disturbing.

6. In final print we view the culmination of Mr. Chin's successful efforts. Body position has been reversed, as have been lights. Major emphasis is given to expressive eyes of model, secondary emphasis to her gracefully posed hands.

EQUIPMENT USED: 5" x 7" view camera with 5" x 3½" split back, 12" Hex Paragon f4.5 lens. Exposure 1/10 sec. @ f:8. Ansco Superpan Portrait film, tank developed 6 mins. @ 68° in DK 60A. Printed in Solar diffusion enlarger on Opal G and developed in Dektol 2 mins. Negatives #5 and #6 retouched and corners of prints darkened.

The PSA Traveler

On the Columbia River highway, U.S. 30, about 18 miles east of the The Dalles, Oregon, at Celilo, is a falls where the Indians catch salmon in dip nets. The banks of the river are rocky and the water is swift. The Indians have built platforms to stand on to fish and, as a precaution, they fasten themselves to these platforms, with ropes. If one falls in, there is not much chance of rescue. The Indians have a village at this site where some of them live permanently. Others come and camp for the fishing season. This activity will cease in about two more years, when the The Dalles Dam is completed, as the falls will be flooded. In the meantime, it is a fine place to go to take pictures because there is so much to see and lots of activity.

SALONS have been generous in letting the Journal have their fine copper engravings when salon catalogs have been printed, and from this store of photographic art we have chosen these six pictures with which to start our new year. Diverse in subject matter and approach, they run the gamut from conventional to abstract, bely the death of pictorialism that some jealous souls would call down with words. The snow scene on this page is from a color original, we have more, just as fine, from color originals and from monochrome negatives that we will bring you from time to time. We would also add to our stock and ask salon managements to send us their cuts, the copper ones only, with two copies of the salon catalog. Send them to the Editorial Office (see page 2).—db

Pictorialism In Color Slides

By Glenn Brookins

Applying Ray Mies's definition of a pictorial, "A pictorial picture is one in which the maker, by means of his imagination, choice of subject matter, process and presentation, is able to evoke an emotional response in the mind of the person viewing it" as a starter, this article by Glenn Brookins, although written for the color worker, has much to offer the monochrome print maker.

As we read his prescription for pictorial color slides we couldn't help but think of a kindred soul, the Hollywood photographer, who day in and day out applies the rules of composition to the placement of his subjects, lights them carefully and critically to further his composition, then wraps it up in a can without benefit of retouching, spotting, cropping, dodging or any of the other aids the print maker can use.

We thought too, of a few perfectionists who crop right on the ground glass, composing to within a sixteenth of an inch of the edge, waiting hours for the right light and shadow, making only a few negatives, but each one a gem.

We almost changed Glenn's title to "Pictorialism the Hard Way" but then we decided to let it stand, hoping a few monochrome workers might read it and heed the message in their own work—more care in the camera, more decisions made before snapping the shutter, more careful thought applied to the pre-view and less tedious work in the darkroom and finishing. We also refer our color readers to Glenn's earlier piece on "Cropping Color Slides." It ran just a year ago, January, 1953.—Editor

It has been asserted in high places that we cannot have pictorialism in color photography as color is known and used today. Especially does this apply to color slides. This opinion is based upon the fact that pictorialism in the past has been largely a matter of darkroom manipulation and control as practiced in monochrome.

Pictorialism has been the prized possession of the b&w worker. Through darkroom control and manipulation of negative and paper he has been able to produce striking examples of so-called pictorialism. The color slide maker uses no paper, no darkroom, and commercial processing precludes any possibility of his control over latent image. Therefore—no control, no manipulation, no pictorialism—say the pictorialists. Color, they assert, is for the amateurs and snapshotters.

But to say a color slide, because of lack of darkroom manipulation or control, is not pictorial or does not exemplify pictorialism, is nonsense. Thousands of good color slides exemplify pictorialism to as great an extent as any black and white print ever hung upon an exhibition wall. Call it anything you want to, but it's still pictorialism.

Just what does this magical musical word, pictorialism, mean, anyway? In monochrome it means simply that the individual with a camera recreates or tries to recreate what he saw or thought he saw, or wanted to see and didn't when he made his exposure. It's what he does, after his latent image shows up, to make a picture as he himself wants to see it. In the process he injects his own skill and personality and his own sense of the esthetic into the finished product. To the extent he deviates within reason from the latent image, and the nicety with which he deviates, is he a creative artist and pictorialist. Pictorialism, then, could be called a process or procedure by which the individual strives to create a certain effect.

But the word pictorialism has come to imply a wider meaning. In its adjective form it is used to describe not only the means to an end, as "pictorial process," but also the end result, as "pictorial print" or "pictorial slide." The word has been spread out, laxly or otherwise, to cover all phases of whatever may be done to attain a certain effect in a picture, including the picture itself.

How does all this apply to the color slide worker? Right off the bat the pictorialist will say that as far as pictorialism is concerned the slide maker is stymied even before he starts. First, because he has no control over his latent image; secondly, when he receives his transparency back from the processing laboratory he has his picture complete—he's all through. His hands are tied—no possibility of control, no manipulation, no pictorialism. How wrong some people can be and honestly feel they are right.

While not adaptable to ordinary slide making as yet, color material and processes have been and are being perfected which admit of a considerable degree of laboratory manipulation or control. This could be pictorialism by the book, but it is costly, complicated, time-consuming, requires almost a commercial setup, and is not in the cards for the average slide maker at present.

But regardless of how pictorialism is attained, whether through ordinary black and white methods or through color laboratory processes, in either instance it has been achieved by manipulation or control AFTER exposure was made. Why not achieve pictorialism to a surprising and wholly satisfying degree by manipulating and controlling some things BEFORE exposure is made?

Manipulation is manipulation and control is control—regardless of whether you do it before exposure or after. What difference does it make whether one in order to gain pictorialism manipulates and controls negative and paper in the darkroom after exposure, or, with greater skill and imagination, manipulates and controls subject matter, color, lighting, filters, lenses and camera before exposure? In either instance so-called pictorialism is achieved through manipulation and control.

The black and white worker has it easy. He can guess at his exposure, neglect his composition, ignore his subject matter in part and print it in later, even stand on his head if he wants to, rectify it all in the darkroom and come up with a first class pictorial print. Not so the chap with camera and color film who wants to produce acceptable slides. His procedure and technique are quite different and quite exacting.

The color slide maker can and MUST attain his pictorial effect BEFORE he releases his shutter. This requires more than a mere modicum of skill and imagination. After exposure is made, if he hasn't already attained his pictorial effect, he can do little about it. Of course he may do some cropping, a minimum of spotting, water or oil colors may be applied, bleaching may be done, colored gels may be used to obtain particular effects, two suitable transparencies may be mounted together in an effective montage, or he may reverse his transparency for greater compositional or pictorial value.

These are some of the things, simple and otherwise, which the slide maker may do to gain pictorialism by "manipulation and control" after he has his latent image. They are a lesser phase of the pictorial process or procedure, in color. For the main part the color slide worker MUST have his pictorial effect BEFORE he shoots. He can't go into the darkroom later and make half a dozen prints to get it. Either he gets it before he shoots or he doesn't get it.

Let the slide maker forget the darkroom or laboratory approach to pictorialism and gain his pictorial effect through control of light, filters, lenses and camera, together with the balancing and harmonizing of color areas and subject matter within the scene, all in conjunction with the known response inherent to the particular film used. This will be the serious slide maker's rendition of pictorialism. It will be pictorialism through PRE-manipulation and control.

While not easy, yet the technique is not too difficult to master. It simply means the color worker must understand—with something more than a shutter-snapper's understanding—the nature and effectiveness of the tools and materials with which he works. He must know how one affects or reacts upon another; he must have the ability to visualize his picture in all its aspects, and then put it together in its ENTIRETY, before making the exposure.

Pictorialism for the slide maker might be said to consist largely of the effect or reaction to that which he sees on the screen, yet the means by which he attains that effect is even more important than the effect itself, for without the means employed there would be no effect. Thus pictorialism in color slides is both a means to an end and the end result. It is the same in monochrome. The slide maker follows one procedure, the b&w worker follows another. Net result: an artistic creation appealing to one's esthetic taste.

Color photography and monochrome are both the product of a camera, but here their affinity in many respects ends. Color is not photography as the world has known it till recent years. From its very inception it cannot be handled like monochrome, and cannot be made amenable to many of the concepts and precepts of monochrome as known and practiced in the past. Essentially it is an activity for fresh, open, inquiring minds, and for this reason it is doubtful if the greater advances in color will be made by the disciplined disciples of monochrome who are steeped in the traditions of the medium in which they have worked. Those advances will have to be made by unfettered minds.

Not long ago an eminent authority wrote: "If color is to become pictorial, then it will be accomplished by the (b&w) pictorialists since pictorialism is peculiar to monochrome." This is merely another instance of the zealotry with which the older pictorialists cling to the traditions of the past. Color can be made pictorial and IS BEING MADE pictorial by workers within its own ranks. And I see no reason why pictorialism should be any more "peculiar" to monochrome than to color, other than through custom or tradition. Color workers can adapt pictorialism to color or color to pictorialism.

Color photography is an art, even a science, all of its own. It no longer is a "poor relation" of black and white photography. Rather it is the modern, smart, glamorized version of the two. B&w may have been its nursemaid, for which color is grateful, but that day is past. Color has shed its diapers, can feed and wait upon itself, and is now growing up. It has a long way to go and problems to be solved, but its progress will be steady and its toughest hurdles will be surmounted by the limitless skill and enthusiasm of its adherents.

Color no longer takes hat in hand and meekly approaches monochrome to ask for a small bit on the stage beside the old master. Color now directs the arranging and setting of the stage and puts on the main act!

The PSA Traveler

In the "R" months, "R" for Erster, you know, you will find lots of activity in Chesapeake Bay. In the fall months the tongers are out, lifting the oysters by hand with long-handled rakes which are joined like a pair of scissors. The tonger sells to a "Buy Boat". Most of the buy boats operate out of Cambridge, Md., some out of Oxford and St. Michaels. With the aid of a little Palm Oil it is possible to induce a Buy Boat captain to take a camera fan along for the trip to the beds and to Baltimore.—TOM FIRTH.

Tom Firth, newly appointed Chairman of the PSA Travel Committee, suggests this is a good time to talk about Memphis, site of the PSA Southern Regional in late April. He suggests the guys and gals from Cincy and St. Looney won't have to travel, just get in a john boat and let her drift. For the Easterners, away from convenient rivers, he suggests the Smokies, en route, with Asheville and the Blue Ridge Parkway as one way. Try US 60 from Richmond into the Blue Ridge and then US 11 to Knoxville. Out of Knoxville about 20 miles take the right fork to Nashville, but tarry there a bit for the sights before going on to Memphis.

Around Knoxville you can see some of the big TVA dams with good pictures above and below. You'll find TVA dams all over and when you're near the river you may see some of the big boats, but if you miss them on the Tennessee, you'll find them on Ol' Miss at Memphis. Not many left these days, the diesel tugs are taking over the river! But you'll see cotton bales, many "studies" on the riverfront and down river you'll find some of the plantation homes that are the glory of the Old South. If you can plan to stay over, there are pictures galore on all sides of Memphis.

Color Slides Can Be Edited Too —

By Irma Louise Carter

With the tremendous emphasis on color slide contests and exhibitions both on the camera club and the international exhibition level it is no wonder that the amateur 35mm photographer loses sight of one of the most entertaining uses to which he can put his slides. On all sides the discussion continues on pictorialism, on interest value, composition, and impact, but always in regard to an individual slide. If a slide has not these qualities, out it goes from even the smallest camera club and the maker wonders how he ever dared submit such a "documentary." All of this really interests a comparatively small number of aesthetic souls and ambitious competitive spirits, but does not help the larger number of 35mm fans. It is the great majority who could profit by learning the satisfaction to be had in the use of the 35mm color slide to tell a sustained story; a story told by a group of slides put together so that the set is a finished product having as a whole the qualities of interest value, composition, and technical skill that are to be found in pictorialism.

If you work your vacation slides into interesting story telling sets, you will have more enjoyment of them and your friends will be more willing to enjoy them with you. You will be more ready to take your slides from the files if they are well organized and easily returned to their proper places. If you are not one who travels or vacations frequently, you may find satisfaction in making yourself an amateur reporter, choosing some activity near you, and using your 35mm camera to do a journalistic coverage of that subject. Setting yourself such a problem challenges your thought processes as well as your photographic ability. You will find it stimulating and at the same time you will be learning more about photography and its pleasures. A number of subjects can be used for your story telling project; you may use trips, long or short, at home or abroad; sports such as fishing, hunting, and contests; industries such as fishing, lumbering, and farming; a way of living; a day in the life of your child; or humor. In the latter category I have seen a show concerning a camera club and its members which by a judicious editing and arrangement of assorted slides from various makers and by clever comment resulted in an exceedingly humorous hour of entertainment. Your story may be a short and simple one, but it depends on sequence and complete coverage of the subject for a great part of its effectiveness.

The average color slide maker can use the camera club with its competitions and discussions as a means of learning the techniques of pictorialism so that these same techniques can then be used in shooting the pictures that will make up his show, whatever its subject may be; each slide will not, and cannot, be pictorial, but it will have been improved by the maker's knowledge of pictorialism.

The following outline is made up more from the standpoint of travel than any other subject, but it will offer a basis on which to work when planning and executing any story telling set of slides. There are a good many "dos" and "don'ts" that have been learned by experience. At least half of the material involves the work that is to be done after the slides are processed; that is your "darkroom" work for it is little suspected by the print maker, it is not often thought of by the color snap shooter, it involves unexpected hours of work, and yet it is what makes your travel and vacation pictures a success and a pleasure to your friends rather than a tiresome duty. Here, then, is a framework for shooting and editing your story telling set of slides.

A—Travel with a thought in your head for:

1. Presenting a rounded picture of the place you visit.

2. ABROAD

- a. General topography of country and city
- b. Close-ups of sections of same
- c. The people and how they look, what they wear, how they live, how they make a living, what they eat, and what they do
- d. Comparisons: the new and the old the rich and the poor differences from your own country similarities with your own country
- e. Oddities
- f. Humor

3. AT HOME follow the same general schedule as abroad

- a. Vacation
- b. Industries—follow the logical sequence of events from beginning to end

4. As you go, consider:

- a. A wise balance of emphasis on subject matter
- b. Analyze as you go and make a definite effort to get any item you have missed.
- c. Remember to include things that are not your particular interest if they complete the rounded picture.

B—Organize the order of your slides as if presenting a lesson in school, simply and logically and in sequence.

1. Place slides in story telling order, not necessarily the way you saw them and took them.
2. Use distant, close, and close-up sequence frequently.
3. Vary the type of subject material as much as possible. Too many landscapes, too many close-ups, too many anything becomes tiresome.
4. Don't overdo any one subject, even if you like it best.

C—Make slides at home to complete the story, to give the finished touch, and to add variety.

1. Titles to give an introduction, to show elapsed time or transportation, or for names you can't pronounce.
2. Maps, general and close-up, give a concrete picture of local, and a pigeon hole into which to file the pictures mentally.
3. Table tops or arrangements of the souvenirs or crafts of a country which you couldn't photograph en route, or can do better at home. Place the slide after a picture of an area or shop where the object could have been found.

D—Establish subject matter to be covered and length of time required for any one show.

1. Where material is very foreign and necessitates explanation, 150 to 200 slides can be shown in 45 minutes.
2. Where very little comment is required, 250 have been shown in 50 minutes.
3. When more lecture material was used, 330 slides were shown in an hour and forty-five minutes, with intermission being necessary.
4. Be sure your show fills no more than the allotted time.
5. For a short show reduce the number of slides and if necessary limit the territory to be covered; it is better to tell the whole story of one country than half a story of two countries.

E—Improve the slides you use to the best of your ability.

1. Crop each slide that will be helped thereby; eliminate unnecessary skies or other material. Center resulting slide
2. Eliminate poor slides from the set and those which require excuses; the remaining slides then appear to better advantage.
3. Cut ruthlessly, but intelligently, until you have the essence of the story you want to tell. Go through the set numerous times, on a light box and on a screen, dropping out a few slides each time. It hurts, but the result is worth it.
4. Use a numbering system for the slides so they can be shown in the same order each time, and can easily be returned to place in the files.
5. Know the order of your slides as they are to appear on the screen; the knowledge will improve your comments.

F—Prepare comments in advance.

1. Use enough factual data (population, elevation, and historical facts) to give slides meaning.
2. Present comments briefly with snap and enthusiasm.
3. Coordinate comment with slides so that slides move through the projector at a regular rate—and know what is coming next.
4. Time the change of slides so that no one slide is on the screen longer than it will hold the interest of your audience.
5. Avoid "This is—" as each slide appears.
6. Limit length of stories of incidents so that no one slide is on the screen too long, or tell one story over a series of slides.
7. ADD HUMOR FREQUENTLY, WHERE POSSIBLE.

No one set of slides need encompass all these points, but it is well to bear them in mind. You will find sections D and F of great value in determining what you are going to show to whom and for how long. It is well to have on hand shows prepared for a half hour, forty-five minute, and hour schedule so that you can accommodate the slides to the time available. Timing of the speed of the slides and the amount of comment is extremely important and you will learn more about it with experience. Once you have adopted the journalistic viewpoint you will find your photography has developed a purpose and you yourself a sustaining enthusiasm. You will find yourself expending that last ounce of energy for the picture that is going to "complete the story." It is to be hoped that these suggestions will help the 35mm photographer to a better enjoyment of his camera and the color slides he makes with it.

Irma Louise Carter is a world traveler and enthusiastic color photographer, combining the two into an active program of travel talks before camera clubs and other groups. This article is based on her talk at the Los Angeles Convention, supplemented by suggestions derived from camera club presentations soon after the Convention. Actually, it applies to any type of sequence photography, still or movie.

From January to April on Chesapeake Bay you can find bugeyes and skipjacks dragging for oysters by sail power alone. Here the crew is waiting for wind. If you have or can hire a power boat to cruise among these picturesque sailing craft as they work you will have the opportunity for many fine pictures. At times you'll see a bugeye loaded with freight sailing along wing and wing so slowly you can circle it and pick the right angles for your shots.

How To Write A Motion Picture Script

Part III. How to Prepare a Script which Cameramen and Film Editor can follow

By George W. Cushman

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of three articles on the subject of motion picture script writing. The first dealt with adapting a story to motion picture treatment, and the second discussed how to prepare a script so that the story is clearly conveyed to the audience.)

The producer of the film, and under him the cameraman, director, and film editor are charged with the responsibility of turning out the photoplay you have created on paper. If they botch the job the audience will say, "What a terrible picture. Who ever wrote such a thing as that?"

Therefore, if your effort is to be successful, you must write a script that the cameraman, director and editor can follow as you intended it should be followed.

There are, essentially, three scripts. The first is the synopsis script, which the sponsor and producer read and change. This is little more than a story of what the picture is to be about. It is not broken down into scenes.

The second is the general or studio script which is indeed broken down into scenes, sequences, etc., with all the directions written in, such as fade-in, fade-out, vertical wipe to left, montage, etc. etc. This script is carefully studied by all those who will have charge of the film's production. It is usually worked over, and often re-written in order to please everyone connected with it, including many high priced stars who insist on controlling certain phases of their pictures.

When this script is finally approved, the job of preparing the shooting script is next. If there have been very many lengthy conferences and subsequent changes in the previous scripts, you risk trouble with your superiors if you change things around in making the shooting script. If the writing has been left pretty much to you, you can make a few minor changes as you see fit.

How does a shooting script differ from any other kind of a script?

There isn't too much difference, except that it is written from the cameraman's point of view and with his problems and limitations in mind.

The most important thing about a shooting script is that it tells the cameraman which scenes and sequences will be shot at the same location. If your film opens at a country home, shifts to the city, back to the country home, then out to sea for a sailing scene, and then ends at the country home you will have a total of five sequences. Obviously the first, third and fifth, all being shot at the country home, should be so marked on the script. These three sequences will be shot all together, thus saving valuable production time.

In the shooting script you will go further than this by breaking down each sequence into scenes, listing all scenes in the film which are shot from the same camera location or angle. For instance, in the above example, sequences one, three, and five will probably want to begin with a long shot of the country home to establish and re-establish where the action is to take place or resume.

It would be foolish to set up for the same shot three different times, so, these three long shots would be taken at the same time and so ordered on the script. Perhaps angles will be altered slightly to give freshness, but time and expense is saved to shoot all similar shots in a film at the same time no matter what their order may be in the finished film.

There will be medium shots and close-ups at the country home. As far as possible, all the medium shots should be shot, and then the close-ups.

Suppose for instance the action in the story takes place on three different days, and your actors must change clothes on each of the three days. In Sequence One they will be wearing clothes we will designate as A, in Sequence Two we will call their clothes B, and in Sequence Three they will be wearing clothes we will designate as C.

Your cameraman will set up his camera, recording equipment, reflectors, and everything else required, such as booster lights if needed, and shoot the medium shots in Sequence One. When finished he will order the cast to change to B clothing and he will then proceed to film the medium shots in Sequence Two. This finished, he will go on to Sequence Three and C clothes. This completed he will begin to shoot the close-ups in Sequence Three, thus making a change of clothing unnecessary at this point, since the actors are already in C clothes.

The cast will probably complain at having to exert so much energy in changing clothes so many times. Let them complain. It takes them ten or fifteen minutes to change clothes, whereas it may take the cameraman, director, and all their assistants an hour or more to change all the equipment for a close-up. Obviously a great deal of time has been saved, something for which the man who has to pay the bills will be thankful.

How is all this marked on the script?

There are dozens of methods, and it matters little which is used. The essential thing is that whichever method is used, it shall be clearly understood by all of those who must refer to it. The major studios vary some in the format of their shooting scripts, but the essentials are there, just the same.

For those who have not had too much experience in script writing, we suggest writing the script in the same order it is to appear on the screen as a finished picture. Each cut or change of camera location is numbered in consecutive order and called a scene, even though the same identical scene may be cut into the film several times at different intervals.

The first thing to appear on the screen will be the sponsor's trademark or insignia, and is described as Scene 1. It should fade-in, and this direction should be so noted. If it is to fade-out, this, too, must be noted. Or, maybe it is to lap dissolve into the main title. Again, give your direction clearly.

The main title will be Scene 2, and the rest of the credits will also have scene numbers. Be sure to show whether they are to lap dissolve with one another, wipe, roll, come on with special matte effects, or just how they are to be presented.

E	15	C Chief again speaks:	Cries fade as chief says: "Black Eagle circle ravine to rear. Big Bear Claw watch north divide. Rest come with me."
A	16	L Forces divide	Quiet

The last fades out.

Scene 6 fades in. This is the first scene of the picture—probably an establishing shot of some kind. Let us assume it is the exterior of the country home in the example above. Don't be afraid to give a full description of the effect you want.

Is it a night shot, a mid-day shot, a grey, misty day? Do you want it heavily filtered, slightly diffused? Whatever you want, so mark it. If this is a small production and you are script writer, producer, director, cameraman and film editor all in one, as so many of us are, you should still write these detailed instructions on the script. It is strange how rattled and forgetful we can become in the excitement of a day's shooting.

Scene 43 and Scene 86 may be from the same spot and of the same identical shot, yet the details may have changed, and if you don't mark these details carefully the chances are you will forget them, no matter how sure you are that you won't.

Scene 7 may be an automobile approaching the country home. Scene 8 may show the car driving in the driveway and coming to a stop at the side door. Scene 9 calls for the actors to get out and go in the house.

Here are four different camera set-ups. On the script they are numbered in order. Also, on the script, they are given a letter, such as A, B, C, and D.

Now let us suppose a second car drives up in much the same fashion. Scene 10, we shall say, is a second car approaching the country home. In Scene 11 the car drives in the driveway behind the first car which is parked there, and in Scene 12 the occupants get out of the car and do whatever is expected of them. In this instance let us say they walk out of the scene towards the front of the house. Then, in scene 13 they go up to the front door and in Scene 14 we show a close-up of them ringing the door bell.

What do we have in this second episode? We have three of the same camera angles or set-ups, and a medium shot and a close-up of one of the old ones. Scene 10 would be marked B, the same as Scene 7, since both scenes may be shot from the same location, which is location B.

Scene 11 would be marked C, since it is the same camera set-up at Scene 8, and Scene 12 would be marked D since it is the same location as Scene 9. Although the props and action are different, this is of little concern to the cameraman in setting up for the shot. The script clerk must watch the props and change them according to the script.

Scene 13 is, actually, a medium shot of Scene 6, and Scene 6 was A. Since we are to have different angles of location A, it is well to label them as you want them. Scene 6, then, we shall call AL, which means a long shot at A. Scene 13 we shall call AM, since it is a medium shot at A, and Scene 14 we shall label AC, meaning a close-up at A.

As your script progresses, you may have a lot of action in front of the home. Scenes requiring a long shot in front of the home will be tagged AL, most of the action will no doubt be medium shots, and these scenes you will label AM, and the close-ups will be AC.

Upon completion of the script you will find the letters of the alphabet are pretty well mixed up. But if you know your ABC's it is a simple matter to list your scenes into a location order according to letter.

First will come the AL scenes. For example you may have Scenes 6, 27, 54, 90, 135 144 all under AL. These are all shot from the same or nearly same camera set-up. These six scenes will probably take less time to shoot than was required to set them up.

Next comes AM, and all the scenes from this point. Then comes AC and its scenes, followed by BL, BM, and BC, then CL, CM, and CC.

Sometimes only one set-up from one point is required, such as B, which was the approach of the automobiles in Scenes 7 and 10. In such an instance no second letter designating the type of shot is required. Just B alone would be enough and would let the cameraman set up the shot as conditions permitted, since this probably wouldn't be a very important shot anyway.

When you have finished, every scene will have been grouped under its proper letter. If you have more than 26 camera locations, begin over with Aa, Bb, Cc, etc., or any other system you care to choose, the important thing being not so much the system as that the system chosen shall be clear and easily understandable to everyone on the production crew.

The cameraman and producer may not choose to shoot the scenes in alphabetical order. The chances are they won't due to light conditions, an actor's schedule or availability, or any of a dozen other reasons. In this example they might shoot C first, then D, then A, and then shoot B a week later on a special section of roadway ten miles away.

The order of shooting is of no concern to you. Your work ends with its preparation, and if the camera crew wants to start with Z and work backward, that is up to them. If you have given all the necessary instructions for each scene, they should be able to easily work from the end backwards, from the center to the beginning or end, or jump around as weather, actor's time, and other factors demand.

Some cameramen want to make their own location order listing. Some will want to work with you on it. If you are not too familiar with a cameraman's problems, limitations and technique, it is indeed wise to invite him in to assist you, otherwise you may give him some difficult, costly assignments, or you may be asking him to do the impossible.

But whoever works out the location order listing, it must not vary one iota from the shooting script. If any change is made, even the smallest, most minor change, it must also be made in the shooting script. Why? Remember, the film editor has no use whatsoever for the location order list? He works 100% from the shooting script which lists the scenes in numerical order. Therefore, if there is a change of any kind from the shooting script, he will have trouble. His scenes won't line up right, and you may have some difficult, costly retakes to do.

It is customary for script writers to be specific, and to include all the necessary details essential to the picture in the script, but non-essential details should be left out so that the cameraman can have as few limitations as possible.

For instance, don't call for the actors to come out of a front door of a house and turn right to walk up the street unless for some reason essential to the plot they must turn right. It may happen that to their right is an unsightly dead tree, a stationary trash can, or some other eye-catching object which would detract from the picture.

Direct simply that they come out the door and walk up the street. The cameraman and director on the job will work out this detail according to the situation at hand. Give them all the leeway possible which does not interfere with the plot or continuity.

No picture was ever shot according to the script. It is practically impossible because of numerous limitations that crop up on location. These you must expect, and someone in the crew, usually the script clerk, should note carefully any and all deviations or changes from the script so that the editor will know what has happened and what has been delivered to him. Your presence during the shooting is a good idea, and you'll be surprised at the many questions the crew will ask of you—questions about things you thought were so well explained on the script!

The cameraman and director will continually ask for permission to change the script. Once it has been approved, you should never allow it, and neither should the producer or anyone else who has that authority. Changes can be costly. Suppose three fourths of the picture has been shot, and towards the end a simple little scene is changed. It goes unnoticed, even by the editor, until the film is completed and given its first showing.

This innocent change will always turn out to be an important link with an earlier or later episode in the film, with the result that the change weakens the effect of the scene it relates to. It means rewriting, more approval, reshooting, re-editing, and a lot of costly bother, just because someone, somewhere, thought a change would be an improvement. When asked about making a change, stand firm on your answer that you have no authority to permit it.

One method of eliminating questions and requests for changes from your production crew is to give full explanations throughout the script. A small, short, apparently unimportant scene at the beginning may have tremendous value and importance later on in the film. Perhaps it is one of those scenes that must be carefully shot in a certain way to achieve its maximum effectiveness.

If so, give a full explanation of why the scene must be shot in a certain way, tell why this scene is important, and you might even include a synopsis of the later sequence and this scene's tie-up with it.

Such instructions should also be given to the director, the prop men, and the electrician, too. A certain kind of prop, or the way it is used or displayed, may do a lot for the effectiveness of the scene. Be sure your crew is told about it.

Should the script writer note the change of angle? Yes. In AM, for instance, where there are six different shots from the same camera angle, the cameraman and producer may feel these are too many from the same point and attempt to change them. If you will recall, these were not consecutive scenes and were to appear at different intervals. Shots from the same viewpoint such as this are well remembered by the audience and do not need as much re-establishing as when the angle of the same scene is constantly being changed.

On the other hand, you may have a rather long series of scenes which requires medium shot treatment, shots which come pretty close together in the finished film. In this instance you should demand a change of camera angle. This might be: KM Scene 47, straight-on, KM Scene 50, low angle, KM Scene 52, straight-on, KM Scene 55, from 45° off center. (Let the cameraman decide if it is to be to the right or to the left unless it should make a definite difference in the script.)

Obviously 47 and 52, both being straight-on shots will be shot in succession, and if KM requires several different camera locations, it will be helpful to further break them down as KM-a, KM-b, KM-c, etc.

If your film will depend a lot on moods, psychological situations, drama, and feeling to put it across, you will want to give specific lighting instructions. It should be sufficient to describe thoroughly the mood of each sequence in your script, although any special lighting you should like to have used should be described. You can then hope the cameraman and director will use it.

A good cameraman will watch his screen direction, but you shouldn't depend upon his doing so. Screen direction is the action a moving object takes on the screen. For instance, suppose you have a chase sequence (which is the best stock in trade the motion picture ever had) and you begin with the man being chased going from left to right across your screen. Imagine the confusion if in the next scene the cop goes from right to left!

You should direct the motion in this instance because it is an important direction—important to the continuity of the picture, and your cameraman must follow it, (or he consistent should he be forced to reverse it.)

The man goes from left to right, and the cop does the same in the next scene. In all subsequent scenes you should call for the man and the cop to go from left to right.

Then suppose you want to change the direction of their running from right to left. This you can do by calling for a couple of scenes in which the audience will see them reverse their direction. This is easily obtained by having the man, followed either in the same scene or a later scene by the cop, enter from the left, go around a building or some other large object, and leave the scene at the left. In subsequent scenes, then, the action can be from right to left.

In the early days when chase sequences were the basis of the famous two reel comedies, the cameraman would shoot a lot of footage of the robber and the cop going either from right to left or left to right, depending on the prevailing light conditions or any other factors that struck them.

Then, when the shooting was through, the film editor would separate all the scenes into two piles—one in which the action was left to right, and the other in which the action was right to left. Also he would have a couple of reversing scenes. He would tie together all the left to rights, then throw in a reversing scene, and then splice in all the right to lefts. You can do the same, providing there is no change of costume or other alterations which would be noticed and spoil the sequence.

There was a novice screen writer who thought a long shot was one which remained on the screen for a long time! But we shall assume you know that a long shot means a picture taken from a distance. If you do want a long shot, meaning, as this novice thought, an excessive length of footage, you should be careful to state this fact in the script.

Suppose you have a situation in which a son is going to his father's home to give him a sound thrashing for a wrong he has done him. If there are reasons why you don't want to show the actual thrashing, you can substitute by having the son go in the house while the camera stays on the house for several seconds.

Of course your audience knows what is going on while you show this static scene of the house. Then the son comes out, his sleeves torn, his hair disheveled, and slightly limping. We know he has thrashed his father.

Unless the situation were explained in the script, it would be normal for the director to call "Cut" as soon as the son had entered the house. For this effect the camera is to remain running for several seconds on the house, even though all the action is going on, invisible, inside.

As the script writer, you control what action will be shown and what will not. When two people are talking in a scene, and you call for close-ups as each talks, the cameraman will normally photograph the person talking. And that he should.

But there are many times when, while one person is talking, the other person who is listening is showing disgust, contempt, joy, complete disregard, or perhaps isn't even listening. This is a separate scene in itself and must be included by number in the script.

For example, the script might read: RC Scene 105. Ann speaking roughly to Stephen. "You're a cheap, low-down, two timer. You can get out and stay out—now—and don't ever come back!" SC Scene 106. Stephen ignoring Ann's remarks, begins to smile at her as she scolds him. Cut this scene in at the point where she says "two-timer."

This scene, then, shows Ann saying the first five or six words. Her voice continues with the rest of her line yet on the screen we see Stephen's reaction. Unless so marked the cameraman would shoot all of Ann talking, then Stephen going through his smile. The editor would possibly leave it that way.

Although the cameraman will shoot it that way anyway (he has little alternative) your direction is primarily for the editor, but it will also help the director visualize the scene and direct Stephen as well as time his scene accordingly.

Your editor will thank you if you will give him plenty of raw material from which to edit. Therefore, if you use a football sequence in which you call for reaction shots, or cutaway shots as the trade calls them, such as the spectators in the stands, you should call for about twice as many as you expect will be used in the finished picture.

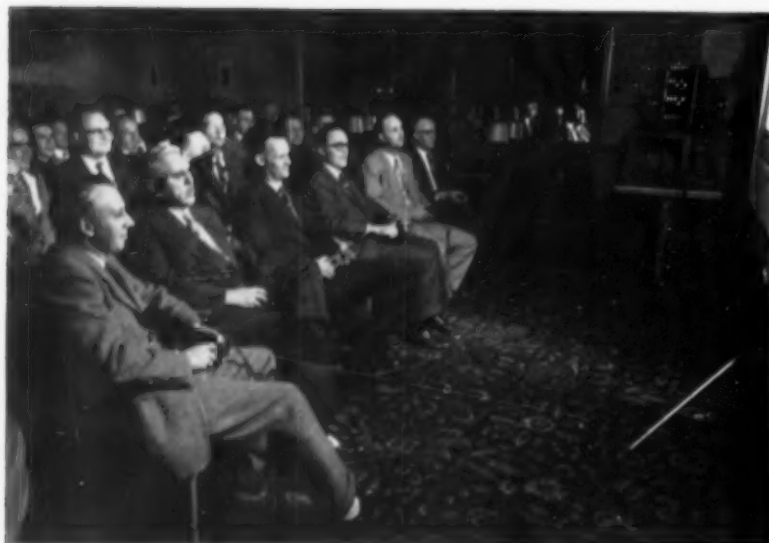

This gives your producer and editor a choice from which to select the best, as well as giving him enough to splice in as many as he feels the sequence will require.

The cameraman should follow your script pretty closely,

Electric Voting Machine

By John H. Wilke

Photos by Wm. H. Johnston

The voting machine in use. Five judges each hold voting box. Sixth man is master control. Machine visible in the background.

(Editor's Note: The voting machine mentioned in the account of the Minneapolis Color Salon in our December issue so intrigued your Editor that he asked for circuitry and full details so any club could have this fast, convenient and all-revealing device. The circuit looks quite complicated but it is really simple. Anyone who can solder wires and follow simple instructions can build it. If none in your club meets these requirements, try to enlist the help of a local radio amateur who can do it as easily as you spot a print or hind a slide. A complete parts list is given and a single source for the parts for your convenience in shopping.)

The score board is the principle part of this electric voting machine as developed by the late Frank Jacobsen for the Minneapolis Color Photo Club. We use it for our club meetings, when we have five judges, and for our International when we have three.

Since we use an 0 to 3 point scoring system in each of three basic fields, Composition, Technical Quality and Subject Matter Interest, each judge is furnished with a handpiece that permits him to cast from 0 to 3 points for each of these qualities. The small box has three dials with pointers, each labeled appropriately, and each pointer has two "Off" positions. When the judge has set each dial to his vote an indicating light on the panel shows that he is ready. No votes show to influence the other judges. When the indicator lights show all judges have registered their votes, the chairman throws the master control switch and the voting machine leaps into life, showing the individual votes of each judge in each of the three categories. The tally clerks then record the votes and the total score is checked as described in the article in the December Journal. When recording is complete the master control switch is thrown to its off position and the judges move their three dials to off positions. If a judge forgets, his indicator light stays on and the chairman can request him to clear his dials.

Electrically, this machine is simple, fool-proof and safe. The voltage is only 6.3, the same as your car battery, and the power consumption is less than 75 watts. It is silent in operation, except for the slight clicking of the judge's hand boxes as they turn their switches, yet all spectators can see the results of the vote from anywhere in the room.

The wiring is really simple, although the circuit does look very complicated to the uninitiated. Each number representing a vote on the judge's box is wired to a lamp on the voting machine. Since there are 12 votes that a judge could cast, there are twelve wires, one to each lamp. There is another wire to the judge's indicator lamp and a feed wire. These wires are connected to the points on the switches, run through a flexible cable which terminates in a multiple plug, which fits into a multiple socket on the side of the machine. From the socket one wire runs to one lamp that represents the particular vote. Of course, it takes two wires to make any electrical circuit, so the other side of the lamp is connected by a wire to all the other lamps and to the power source. This is the basic circuit. The machine itself is simply this circuit repeated 36 times for the three-judge version and 60 times for the five-judge model.

To be perfectly truthful, one of the hardest jobs in building the machine is the number panel, unless you have available to your club a large copy camera, or will abide a paste-up job that will serve well but not look as neat. Most clubs, especially in small towns, do not have a photo-engraver or lithographer in their membership, or possibly not even in the town. You need for the panel a plate or film negative as big as the panel, with the numbers all properly registered over the lamps. Let me tell you how we did it in Minneapolis.

We pasted up numbers from an old calendar. Then we had it copied on a Kodak lith plate. This negative is used in the front of the machine. If we had used a film negative it would be necessary to use a piece of clear glass over it to protect the film and hold it flat.

Pieces of theatrical gelatin filters in three colors are mounted behind the numbers, one for each category of voting. The colors are light ones so the lighted numerals may be clearly seen from the back rows.

There is a light mounted behind each numeral, shining through a one-inch hole in a piece of white pine. The back of each hole is protected by a black paper conical shield to prevent light from leaking to other holes. I think this design can be simplified by using one of the new flat drills to cut part way through, then use a smaller drill to finish the hole, one that the bulb can be pushed into as a snug fit. I think a 5/16" drill will just take the bulbs. Otherwise it is necessary to mount a thin strip of metal down each row of holes so the mounting clip of the Dialco #504 lamp sockets can slip on it. By using 3/4" plywood for the back and drilling the large hole 1/2" deep, you will have 1/4" left in which to seat the lamps and you can use the Dialco #507 sockets. These would simply push in and the wiring would hold it in place.

How the board looks in action. This slide drew 25 votes out of a possible 45. Lights at top are indicator lights that show each judge has voted.

By painting the inside of the large hole white you will get an even reflection on the numbers. Furthermore, you won't have to worry about shielding the back to prevent leaks.

If you don't have a large copy camera available to you, there are several other methods available to you. You can cut out the numerals from a calendar, trimming them close to the printing and paste them on a large sheet of thin white paper, or tracing paper. Cover this with a second sheet of thin paper so the numbers are not visible until the light shines behind them. (Or paste them face down on the back.) If you can get a large sheet of high contrast film, such as Kodalith or Reprolith, you can use this as a negative and print by contact on the film which will give you the desired reversed figures, white against the black background. Using the paste-up sheet, you will have black figures in a lighted circle. In any case you bind the filter gelatin between the board and the number sheet.

The lettering for the side panels "INT VAL", "TECH QUAL" and "COMP" can also be borrowed from calendars, though you'll have to convert an "O" to a "Q" by hand. The bulbs which light these key words are also mounted behind the panel but the holes in front are elongated into long slots by drilling overlapping holes part way through and then chiseling out the remaining knobs. Paint these white also.

The judges hand pieces can be made of wood to almost any shape you want, but the metal Miniboxes specified in the parts

This is not as complicated as it looks! The text tells how easy it is to wire. For a three-judge box, ignore Jones Sockets #4 and #5 and the vertical light banks #4 and #5. The control switch socket listed is a Twist-Lok not the three wire socket shown.

The whole outfit for five judges. Master control switch is the small one at lower left. Bank of lights could not be normally lighted this way as each judge can cast only one vote in each category.

list are easy to use and will take a lot of punishment. Three holes are drilled in the top of each, and one in the end to admit the intercom cable. Tape the cable well where it goes through the box and build up a ring of tape on the inside so it will not pull through the hole.

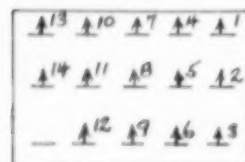

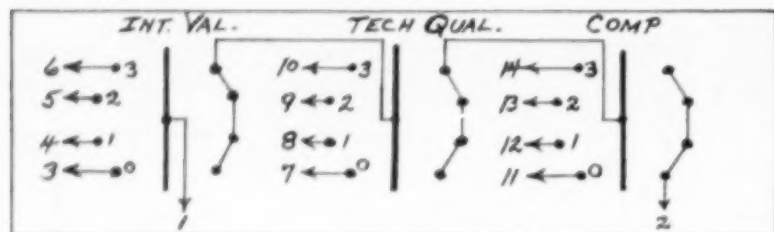

The master control switch is a simple feed-through switch such as is used on appliances. The two wires are fastened to the terminals in the switch and when the "On" side is pressed, it closes the circuits inside the machine. This cord terminates in a Hubbell Twist-Lok connector so the house current cannot be accidentally plugged into it.

The filament transformer is fed from the 110-volt house line and the 20-foot extension cord is permanently connected to it. (Or a female motor base may be used if the cord is to be detachable.) Plug the cord in and the key words light up. No fusing is needed unless there is danger of plugging it into a DC line or into 220 volts. The transformer steps the 110 volts down to a safe 6.3 volts and no part of the machine is hazardous as long as the wires connecting the flex to the transformer have taped joints.

The flexible cables connecting the judge's boxes to the machine should be of different lengths so the machine can be placed in a corner for maximum visibility. The shortest should be about 12 feet long and the others should increase in about three-foot steps. This cable is color coded so you should have no difficulty getting the wires connected right. Just be sure every switch box follows the same color coding.

To simplify the drawing of the circuit the complete wiring is not shown. Each contact on the Jones sockets are numbered and the lamps are numbered to correspond.

Above diagram of judge's switch box shows internal connections. The "bar" contactor is formed by soldering the connecting wire to the two inside contacts of the switch (see text). The numbers to the right of each block dot (contact) are the value of the vote, the number on the left is the number of the connection in the Jones Plug which has 15 contacts, one unused.

Run a wire from each contact to the correspondingly numbered lamp and solder both ends at once.

The wiring operation will go very easy if a simple work plan is followed. Six colors of wire are provided in the parts list. The white is for the common wiring to all lamps. Push the lamps and sockets into place and arrange them so all the contacts point in the same direction. Then skin the insulation from a piece of white wire that is long enough to run vertically down one whole row of one judge's lamps. You'll have to skin a few inches at a time and slide it off the end. Leave an unskinned portion long enough to reach the common connection point. Start soldering at the top end and wire all of one side of a row to the bottom. Do this for all five rows. Now twist these five wires into a small cable, cut to length, skin the ends and solder them all to the connection.

Now wire up the master control circuit and the three key words. Use the white wire for this also.

Before starting to wire the other contact of the judge's lights, drive an 8d. finishing nail into the wood at the bottom of each vertical row, and also in line with each Jones socket, but about an inch away from it. Put another at the bottom in a horizontal line with the bottom nails and vertically aligned with the socket nails. Cover the whole bottom row of nails with Scotch electrical tape. These nails will keep your wiring trim.

Now take one of the other colored wires and start at the top socket. Trim about $\frac{3}{4}$ " of insulation from the wire and solder it to the #1 contact of the Jones socket. Run it over the nail, down, across the bottom, around the last nail and up to the corresponding #1 lamp. Cut, skin and solder. Repeat this with #2, etc. When Judge No. 1 is finished, select another color of wire and repeat on the second Jones socket and second row of lights. You will note that only 14 of the 15 Jones plug contacts are used. This leaves one spare and there are spare wires in each cable for future repairs. (Cut these spare wires long enough to permit later use.)

When all three or five judge's circuits have been wired, tie the wires in the form together with string or Scotch electrical tape for neatness. Because of the color coding, you can trace trouble at any future time. If a light burns out it can be replaced easily by withdrawing the bulb and socket. The flexible wire will permit this.

The only part of wiring the judge's boxes that might be confusing is in the switch. You can see from the diagram that one side of the two-circuit switch is strapped together. You do this by simply soldering a wire across the four contacts on that side. This provides a connection so the judge's indicator light will go on. The switch arm is shown in the diagram as a bar. In the switch itself the "bar" is two wiping contacts inside the switch. The connections for these are the two solder lugs inside the nest of rim lugs. When attaching the wire that runs to the next switch, make it long enough to reach both these lugs and solder it to both of them. That makes the "bar" of the diagram. In wiring the switches, connect to the inside four lugs of each side of the switch. You can see the sliding contact by looking at the edge. This leaves one contact un-connected at each end for "Off" positions. If you would rather, you can wire them so that turning hard right against the stop connects vote number three, leaving two off positions at the other end. Switches with adjustable stops are more expensive.

Our scoreboard is made entirely of wood with removable back and front. Frame molding is used to trim the front and hold the glass in place. The score board measures 19 inches high by 12 wide and about four inches thick. These dimensions are not critical but will serve as a guide.

Infinite choice

...with Kodak Medalist Paper

Choose an ordinary paper, and you're stuck with a few rigid contrast grades. Maybe they match your negative—and maybe they don't.

But choose Kodak Medalist Paper, with its unique range of contrast control, and you have a continuous choice of grades, from below No. 1 to above No. 4. Simply by adjusting the ratio of exposure and development! Each of Medalist's four numbered grades can be adjusted up or down—softer or more brilliant—to where the adjoining grades take over.

Here, at last, is a modern paper that can be "tuned" to match any good negative—match it precisely—for top quality in every print. And you can choose freely between soft, normal, and brilliant prints from the same negative—for the exact mood and interpretation you desire.

Medalist on direct development yields rich, clear warm blacks—just a hint warmer than the true neutral blacks of Kodabromide Paper. In Kodak Brown Toner, Medalist tones to a beautiful warm brown. In Kodak Selenium Toner, it yields rich, deep browns. In Kodak Blue Toner, it acquires gray-blue tones. Several popular surfaces—including glossy F, fine-grained lustre G, and sparkling high-lustre J—and printing grades Nos. 1 through 4.

And it's a high-speed paper—with the same effective printing speed for all four contrast grades.

In brief, it is the most remarkable photographic paper in many years. If you are seeking a finer medium for your work—if you have not yet discovered what Kodak Medalist Paper can do for you—your Kodak dealer is the man to see. See him today.

About those

Four New Kodak Cameras

Couple of months ago, Kodak came out with four new cameras all in a bunch—priced from $215 away down to $4.25.

We're pretty proud of all four of them. So are the engineers who designed them. We're excited also about the reception they're getting.

All of these cameras are worth knowing about, if you like to keep abreast of things. One is as fine a professional-quality camera as we've ever made. One is a miniature that runs high up in quality, and away down in price. One is probably the easiest-loading 35mm miniature anybody ever made. And the fourth will gladden the heart of any young member of your family.

Eye-level 2 1/4 x 2 1/4, with Kodak Ektar Lens

First, we come to a new eye-level 2 1/4 x 2 1/4 precision camera built for serious work of top quality—amateur and professional. It's the Kodak Chevron Camera.

The Chevron is a top-performance camera . . . a connoisseur's camera . . . a large-film camera with miniature-camera precision . . . a camera that combines the merits of a workhorse with the beauty and finish of a thoroughbred.

It's a camera that teams Kodak's finest lens, an f/3.5 Kodak Ektar, with Kodak's fastest shutter, the Synchro Rapid 800.

The Chevron is a versatile camera. It takes all Kodak 620 roll films and, with a $4.75 adapter, all 828 miniature films . . . so that with equal ease it yields 2 1/4 x 2 1/4 black-and-white negatives, 2 1/4 x 2 1/4 Kodachrome negatives and Ektachrome transparencies, 828 negatives (black-and-white and Kodachrome), and 828 Kodachrome transparencies. Here are the details and specifications:

Purpose: to provide serious and exacting photographers with an eye-level roll-film camera of unsurpassed optical quality, operating convenience, and dependability.

Lens: Kodak Ektar, 78mm f/3.5, 4-element, with all glass-air surfaces Luminized to insure optimum light transmission, tonal separation, and color purity. This finest of Kodak lens types yields images unsurpassed for crispness, detail, and color quality in the hand-camera field.

Shutter: Kodak Synchro Rapid 800, gear-train retard, with 10 speed settings from 1 second to 1/800 second and "B." Built-in flash synchronization with continuous-adjustment time-lag setting for peak performance with either Class M or F lamps at any shutter speed, plus no-lag setting for Class X (electronic) flash.

Focusing: Split-field, clear-image, lens-coupled rangefinder, covering the full range from infinity to 3 1/2 feet. We achieve unusual precision in rangefinding by means of a cam 7 1/4 inches long, which circles the solid all-metal focusing mount and is exact to .0005 inch at every point.

Viewing: Direct, optical eye-level viewfinder with automatic parallax correction at all ranges for both the 620 and 828 field of view; and instantaneous switching to either field desired, by a simple control which shifts a built-in finder mask.

Control Scales: Two lens diaphragm scales, one visible from above, one from front. Distance scale, and field depth scale showing depth for all apertures, visible from above and front. Shutter speed scale, and flash synchronization scale, visible from front. Automatic exposure counter on top (plus red window on back, for use with 828 film). Film-type indicator on back.

Film Advance: By convenient thumb lever (no knobs) with automatic film stop and counter for 620 films.

Size: With lens retracted, 6 1/8 x 4 1/4 x 4 1/2 inches; total weight, 40 ounces (about twice the weight of a miniature camera such as our Kodak Signet 35).

Construction: Rugged die-cast aluminum-alloy body, with registering and mounting surfaces integrally machined (this is one of the secrets of the Chevron's precision and dependability). Back hinged to lift at either end or remove completely for easy loading. Tripod socket centered on bottom for perfect balance. Serial number on body. Built-in neck-strap loops.

Special Devices: Sliding mask on rear finder window makes viewing equally convenient for those who wear glasses and those who don't. Guide rails in the film roll recesses steer the spool directly to the pin—make loading quick and easy. Film lever is so placed that a flash unit can be mounted close to camera body—no need to allow space for turning a winding knob. Wide back rails support film away from picture aper-

This "exploded view" takes you inside the Chevron—shows you the foundation for its performance. Look at the sturdy, generously sized rangefinder parts . . . the rugged die-cast metal body . . . the broad, rigid lens mount, exquisitely machined for smooth action and riding on 56 ball bearings. From control turret to base plate, every part is made with "fine-instrument" quality, to do a quality job.

ture—no scratching. Focusing mount "floats" on 56 steel ball bearings—velvet smooth, with no slack or play, and equally free-moving in midsummer and midwinter.

Accessories: Series V Lens Attachments. Tan Cowhide Field Case, metal reinforced, with snap-off front, $17.50. Adapter for No. 828 film, $4.75.

Price: Kodak Chevron Camera with neck strap and lens cover, $215.

That's the story—and if you had to spend the rest of your life with just one camera, the Chevron would be a natural choice. Let your Kodak dealer put one in your hands; handle it; try it out; and you'll see what we mean.

Handsome is, and does . . .

We're using a big picture of the new Kodak Bantam RF (for rangefinder) Camera for two reasons: 1) it has so much eye appeal it's just plain good to look at, and 2) we want you to see the details, because this could be a camera for you. It's right for those who like to "travel light," those who want a second camera that doesn't add too much weight or bulk to their usual outfit, and those who want the convenience of 8-exposure No. 828 film.

The Bantam RF performs as well as it looks. The brilliant viewfinder is combined with a highly accurate, superimposed-image-type lens-coupled rangefinder for fast, precise single-window viewing and ranging. The lens mount rotates smoothly against 45 ball bearings to eliminate "play" and keep lens and film always parallel. Focusing range is from 2½ feet to infinity. (For convenience, we've put average lens-and-shutter settings for Kodachrome Film in red.)

Matched to the excellent mechanical construction is the Bantam RF's Kodak Ektanon Lens, 50mm f/3.9, fully color-corrected and Lumenized. The Kodak Flash 300 Shutter is synchronized for flash and has these speeds: "B," 1/25, 1/50, 1/100, and 1/300 second. The body shutter release is smooth in action; loading and unloading are simple. And there's automatic film stop and double-exposure prevention.

We include the Kodak Bantam RF Camera in an attractive Town & Country Outfit that includes camera, Field Case, and Flashholder. Price of the complete outfit is $78.50. Subtract from this the cost of a good field case and flash and you'll find the price of the Bantam RF itself is moderate indeed.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY, Rochester 4, N. Y.

Quicker pick-up . . .

Chances are, you're familiar with the Kodak Pony 135 Camera. We've now added a neat little gadget that makes it just about the easiest-loading miniature on the market.

There's no threading, no inserting of the film in a slot. It's almost automatic.

To load, you just place the film magazine in the film chamber and lay the end of the film leader over the take-up spool; replace the back and wind.

The secret is in a small pin on the take-up spool. The natural curl of the film draws it up against the spool. When you start winding, the small pin automatically catches the nearest film perforation. Simple as that.

The only changes in the new Pony 135, Model B, are this easy-loading feature and a new spring that pushes the film magazine up for easy removal. It still has a Lumenized Kodak Anastom f/4.5 Lens in a Kodak Flash 200 Shutter with speeds from 1/25 to 1/200 second plus "B." It has a telescoping lens barrel, a safety device to prevent tripping the shutter until the lens is extended. All exposure and focusing scales are visible from above, with average settings for color and black-and-white marked in red.

If you choose the Kodak Pony 135 Camera, Model B, for your second camera, it will serve you well. If you recommend it to someone who wants to take crisp, sharp Kodachrome transparencies, someone who someday may want photography as a hobby, you won't go wrong. Price, $36.75.

Newest Brownie . . .

Perhaps we're prejudiced, but we have a soft spot in our hearts for the big old square-cornered box camera with the dime-sized waist-level finder. It's the one most of us started with.

But times change, and progress is made—as witness Kodak's newest Brownie, the Holiday.

It still bears the Brownie name—but it's a compact, hand-fitting, smartly-styled eye-level camera, with a sharp, direct optical finder that equals the finder on many a high-priced fast-lens camera. It's nicely sized for young users (your small boy or girl, perhaps), it has its own neck strap (like your cameras), it has a smooth-acting shutter release and very efficient shutter. We recommend it without reservation for Kodacolor shots in bright sunshine, as well as black-and-white. It gets 8 sharp 1⅓ x 2½-inch negatives from each roll of No. 127 film.

Our engineers assure us that it's a triumph in the design handling of modern molded materials—worked out so that the light-trapping, lens centering, and so on, are as fine as in many expensive cameras. They should know. We also know that it looks fine, handles well, takes good pictures, and costs only $4.25, complete with neck strap. We'd call it perfect for a beginner in your household—or any other household.

If you haven't seen these four cameras, you'll be seeing them soon at your Kodak dealer's. Whether or not you're in the market at the moment, we think you'll enjoy viewing their really handsome styling, rugged construction, and remarkably precise and clever engineering.

Prices include Federal Tax where applicable and are subject to change without notice.

CHIRPS FROM THE ROBBINS

Someone asked me the other day, "Just what can a Portfolio do for me?" That is an easy one to answer!

First, and perhaps the most important, you will gain a wealth of photographic know-how from fourteen other guys and gals, PLUS the sincere and competent advice of a Commentator who has had a lot of experience in the photographic exhibits and is well-equipped to give you the answers to your problems in all phases of photography.

There is only one thing you must remember: You will get out of it only in direct measure what you put into it. You must put in only the very best of ability and effort if you are to get the most out of the activity.

"That's wonderful!" you say, "And what more could I ask?" True, you didn't ASK for any more than the know-how, did you? But wait a minute! You do get something else—should we call it a bonus perhaps?

Just imagine suddenly finding yourself with fifteen (count them) brand new and loyal friends, friends that start out by saying, "Welcome to Portfolio number so-and-so! Is there anything I can do for you? I'd be so happy to be of help to you. Oh, and by the way, I have a little problem. Maybe you can help me—I see you, too, are interested in paper negatives. . . ."

Not one of them will pull their punches and pat you on the back for a poor job. But they WILL tell you how to make it into a print that they CAN pat you on the back for; not hesitating to say, "That's what I'd call a good job! Send it out that way." But, conversely, they will also tell you just as readily, "Why don't you take it over? As it is, it just isn't worth spending too much time laboring over it. Put that time into something that will produce the results that you really want."

Now, tell me, wouldn't you call that the test of a real friend? I would—it hurts to have someone keep on covering up their thoughts on bad prints, until finally a stranger "dares" to tell the truth, after you've worked your heart out to come even close to what you thought might make a good print.

That's why I say that you are going to, first of all, have an opportunity to gain photographic knowledge, PLUS gaining a host of new and wonderful friends. How about it? Where else will you get so much for only $1.00 a year?

If you are interested, don't hesitate, write sow to Eldridge R. Christliff whose address you will find in the masthead of this Pictorial Digest.

Portfolio Medal Award

This month our winner of the Portfolio Medal Award is Captain Eugene F. Keutzer of Bossier City, Louisiana, who is a member of Pictorial Portfolio Circle #25. Below, in Capt. Keutzer's own words, is a description of his print "Old Wood and Iron" which hung in the 1953 Memphis International Salon after having traveled in the Portfolio.

"I arrived home from a short trip to Europe and Africa in September, 1952 to find the Linhof Super Technika which I had ordered the previous January waiting for me. Naturally, the next Sunday found me out exercising the little beauty—trying out all its lenses and peering at its ground glass. 'Old Wood and Iron' is one of the first pictures the Linhof made.

"About forty miles from here, in Texas, is Karnack State Park. The park is almost photographically barren, as far as I am concerned, except for an old weather-beaten log cabin which is apparently used as a workshop and storehouse. One of the doorways is the subject of the picture—to be more exact, the old fashioned latch is the subject.

"Thanks to the Pictorial Division and to Portfolio #25 for that—especially to the portfolio. After examining the prints which make their periodic visits to my house, the idea has finally percolated through that the best prints are those which are the simplest—those which concentrate the interest. As Jack Jones wrote me once: 'ISOLATE AND ELIMINATE'.

"'Old Wood and Iron' was made on Isopan using the 180mm Tele-Xenar. The Linhof was, of course, on a tripod and the exposure record unknown. The film was developed normally in D-25.

"The exhibition print is a 16" x 20"

using almost the whole negative. It is very easy to print requiring absolutely no dodging. I like it best on Opal G developed in D-52 and gold-toned until the print has a nice warm feeling. Another thing I like about this print is that it requires no spotting at all. I wish all my negatives were like this one!

"'Old Wood and Iron' started its career by winning an honorable mention last year in the Shreveport Camera Club's annual competition. It was one of the first four prints I ever sent to a salon and hung the first time—in Memphis this year. I just received word that it has been accepted at Houston—two acceptances out of four times out.

"There was some confusion at Memphis. I guess my print numbers didn't agree with my entry blank. Until I received the catalog, I thought it was another of my prints that had hung. When it turned out to be 'Old Wood and Iron', my dear PSA wife said: 'Why, you've got that in Portfolio #25. Quick, apply for a Portfolio Award before they're all gone!' I did, and hence this article.

"The medal is beautiful, and we're very proud of it around this house. Thanks again, Pictorial Division."

The Master's Voice

Here are some comments by Mr. H. W. Wagner, AFSA, one of the Masters of the Salon Workshop activity, regarding dark-room procedure to control contrast and density in film. Mr. Wagner is a Five Star Exhibitor, one of two men in the United States who has qualified for this high honor by exhibiting 128 different prints at least 640 times.

Controlling Film Contrast and Density

We all read the instructions which come with photo supplies. Sometimes they work, and sometimes they don't, in reference to desired results. Carefully controlled experiment then becomes a necessary element of success.

Each worker has his own general chain of individual steps in processing. He must learn to fit in certain stages with his more established steps. For example, I find it useful to develop film in D-76 for a longer time than the instructions say. That may be because I use a diffusion enlarger. To obtain contrast suitable for No. 2 contrast paper (also Opal and Indiatone), with temperatures at about 65-70° F, the time ranges from 20 minutes with fresh D-76 to 40 minutes when it becomes soupy enough to discard.

When a batch of film comes with too little or too much contrast, due to too little or too much development, respectively, the situation can be remedied by intensification or reduction. I find Victor Intensifier quite satisfactory, there are other excellent brands, no doubt. For reduction, I use one teaspoonful each of potassium ferricyanide and plain hypo per 8 oz. of water.

Going in either direction certain precautions must be observed. The chemicals should be well blended in the solution. The film should be soaked in advance, 10 min. immersion in water is sufficient. Select another negative of the same contrast and density as the one to be treated and wet it in water. It is to serve only as reference. The one to be treated is submerged quickly in the solution, emulsion side up, and agitated constantly. After 10 seconds, rinse it in clear water and inspect it in comparison with the reference film, toward the light.

Repeat this cycle until the desired effect appears to be reached. The treated film is then placed in an acid fixing bath for a few minutes, to insure stability, and washed and dried in the usual manner. Of course, the proof will be in the printing.

It is of help also to have for reference during treatment, a third film which is known to be of correct contrast for the paper to be used. A darkroom is not needed for either intensification or reduction.

Anyone wishing to join the Salon Workshop, which will bring you help like the above from our Masters, is urged to write to the Director, whose name and address appear in the masthead.

ERWIN H. ZIEGL, Associate Editor

Alfred Watson, who was the first Five Star exhibitor in the Pictorial Division, feels that the greatest enjoyment he has derived from his exhibition work is that he has met so many nice people! Photography is truly a hobby with him, as he says he doesn't take it seriously at all and that the pictures he likes best are the small snapshots of his family and friends.

When he began work in his Camera Club, he was reticent about exhibiting because he felt the other's work was so much better than his own. Through encouragement by a few friendly members, he finally began to take some club awards. The inspiration he derived from seeing the Rochester Salon one year, when he was on a business trip, started him on the road to international exhibiting.

He sent prints to almost all the Salons for ten years, having one or more prints accepted in each one. Different from most records like this, most of Mr. Watson's prints have been hung only a few times, with a few accepted many times.

Mr. Watson uses a Medalist camera for his black and white work, a Kodak 35 for color. In his basement, he has a completely equipped darkroom for black and white or color processing.

There is much inspiration in Alfred Watson's photographic history for all who are interested in exhibition work. His philosophy of making his hobby just fun and his pictures only a by-product in the greater experience of making friends would be good for all of us. His experience at seeing a big international exhibition will be repeated whenever a novice sees his first Salon. And his humility before the work of his camera club early in his exhibiting career brings him to the level of each of us.

A. LUNNE PASCHALL, Associate Editor

When Joe Doaks brings one of his masterpieces to the camera club, we are sometimes hard put to think of flattering things to say about it. For there sits Joe himself, shy but hopeful, and we know that the old boy has put in a lot of labor on that print and will be deeply hurt if we tell him what we really think of it.

But once in a while our program committee comes up with a set of prints which, they assure us, were made by experts. Then the fun begins. Nobody knows Art Humdinger who made the prize winner or ever expects to meet him, so we give his print the works.

We observe that his point of interest is three sixteenths of an inch out of place, and that the most prominent lead line carries the observer's eye right out of the picture. We decide that the color of toning is entirely wrong for the mood, and the focus lacks sharpness. Somebody thinks that half an inch should have been cropped off the right side, and we wonder why he allowed so much emphasis on the gravel in the foreground.

Having gotten all that off our chests, we may then grudgingly admit that his picture is pretty good on the whole and we wish that we could do as well.

After the show is over, most of the members feel happy about it all. They have

Show me a person interested in photography, and I'll show you a person who will stop dead in his tracks at the sight of a fine picture. I know that I have traveled three hundred miles just to view a photographic salon, and considered it time well spent. And there are many who have done the same, for I have met and talked with them at the salons and exhibits.

Now it is obvious that we all can't just up and take off to every exhibit we hear of. In fact, many of us who live in the smaller towns, far from the large cities, may never have an opportunity to see a good photographic exhibit.

Well, at least this was true until the Pictorial Division decided to do something about it. Now, through the International Exhibits service, your camera club can

Testing Newly Acquired Equipment

Taking a new color slide camera and exposure meter on a vacation trip may be a fine idea, but don't overlook packing the instruction book along with the road maps and motel guides.

Better still, become familiar with the new equipment before leaving the friendly environs of your home-town photo dealer.

Taking a chance with unfamiliar equipment (new or used) is too much of a gamble for any photographer with serious intentions.

Let's recite a few specific cases: Friend No. 1 buys a used exposure meter, makes a hasty indoor check with another meter of similar make, and leaves on a 6,000-mile trip. He returns a few weeks later with most of his color slides over-exposed. Why? A second check of his meter on high readings in bright light outdoors revealed the fact that his meter was weak.

Friend No. 2 buys a new 35 mm camera, has a photo-enthusiastic neighbor load it for him, and off he goes on an important cross-country tour. The camera jams when the 36-exposure roll is about one-third used. The instruction book was left at home. After several disheartening experiences trying to correct the trouble (losing badly wanted pictures), an experienced photo dealer was contacted. All the trouble came from incorrect loading of the film in the camera.

Friend No. 3 takes a new, expensive camera on an important nature trip into a distant state, and returns with all pictures light-damaged by a "leak" in the camera body. A rare defect indeed, but it did happen.

Of course, the best solution to all these difficulties is to buy new or used equipment long enough before starting on a major picture-taking venture to know how it will perform. But, suppose you are caught "short" with only a few days to check on things. What can you do?

Well, buy a 20-exposure roll of black and white, 35 mm. film, practice loading, and then snap the whole roll of film at different lens settings. Keep a record of each exposure and get the roll developed immediately. This can all be done in 24 hours or less.

Check the results carefully. This will not give an accurate test of the camera's performance with color film, but any major mechanical shortcomings in the camera or your operation of it will likely show up. You also have some experience loading and unloading the camera, making exposures, and setting the lens in various ways. If all has gone well, you will then go on your picture tour with greater confidence in the newly acquired equipment. It is always a good idea to keep a record of light conditions, exposure data, and meter reading on your first few rolls of film at least.

"Hand Colored Prints Not Accepted"

Judging from the interest shown by those who hand color their monochrome prints, it is obvious that this phase of photography has quite an enthusiastic following. In visiting the various camera clubs and traveling around, it would seem that the uppermost question in the minds of the hand colorists is: "Why do most of the exhibition committees exclude prints that are hand colored?"

This is a fair question. We know of some committee members who claim that hand coloring is actually 'painting', and agree that brushwork has little—if any—place in the coloring of photographic prints with color that is opaque. Certainly the use of opaque color over the nice detail in a print is not likely to arouse admiration within the bosom of the meticulous darkroom addict.

At the same time, however, it might be in order to point out that there is little difference between a print that has been color-toned by transparent oil colors and one that has been color-toned by chemicals. Certainly the former technique has greater possibilities for beauty and realism than the latter, assuming the colorist eschews the use of opaque brushwork.

At the moment there appears to be no organized reply to the objections of the exhibition committees, many of whom—we suspect—must have seen horrendous examples of hand coloring that showed neither good technique nor color harmony. This being so, perhaps the right approach to the problem of acceptably colored prints would be a determination on the part of the hand colorists to overcome honest objections through a better craftsmanship, mastery of color harmony, and preservation of print modeling.

Hand colorists lack organization! Most of them are unable to improve their work because of a lack of information and an exchange of ideas. The more proficient colorists who have made considerable headway in their color work, know the excellent possibilities of their medium. They are eager to so develop their technique and color sense that the beauty of their colorful creations cannot be further denied.

As hand colorists, let's be original. Instead of resenting the critics who have to be shown, let's thank them and straight-away set about making our colorings sweeter, richer, and more real than reality itself! NOW!!!

Nature Photography Exhibitions

As a matter of information, here are the recognition requirements for Nature Photography Exhibitions. Exhibitions meeting these requirements may indicate that they are "held in accordance with P.S.A. requirements," but shows composed of several sections may not make this overall statement unless each section meets its own requirements.

The requirements for recognition and support by the Nature Division of P.S.A. are:

1. A minimum acceptance of 100 prints and slides.
2. The exhibition must be open to anyone, and without restrictions to any specified fields in nature.
3. No more than 4 transparencies, regardless of size, may be submitted by any one contributor, nor more than 4 prints. (Sequences are an exception to this rule)
4. A maximum interval of six weeks between DEADLINE and END OF THE EXHIBITION.
5. Notification of receipt of prints or slides is not necessary, but a card announcing the results of the judging must be sent to each contributor shortly after the judging. This report card serves both as a notice of receipt of the entries and of the success of those entries in the judging. Each contributor must also receive a catalog.

Additional recommendations.

- A. It is recommended that projected slides be judged with a beaded screen illumination of about 10 foot candles.
- B. Print box judging of prints is satisfactory, also any method in which the judging is under lighting conditions similar to those under which the prints will be exhibited.
- C. Exhibitions will not be listed if there are frequent complaints of damaged property, of failure to answer correspondence, or of undue delay in return of entries.
- D. SPECIAL RECOGNITION is awarded to those shows which meet the above requirements, and which in addition: (1) are courteous to their contributors; (2) have report cards in hands of the average contributor within 8 days after the judging; (3) have entries back in hands of the average contributor within 14 days after the close of the exhibition; and (4) have catalogs in hands of the average contributor within 17 days after the close of the exhibition.

What Can You See?

Modern photographic equipment and materials make it possible to record on film almost anything the eye can see. Cameras are available to satisfy almost any reasonable requirement at prices to fit every purse, also telephoto lenses for distant shots and wide-angle ones for cramped quarters. For close-up work there is a choice of auxiliary lenses, extension tubes, bellows attachments and a microscope attachment for extreme magnification. The recent revival of stereo brings three dimensional realism to your pictures. The choice of materials includes ultra fast film for fleeting shots, infra red for cutting through haze and color for life-like reproduction.

Even with all this array of photographic tools and aids there is still one thing lacking, and that is the imagination of the person behind the camera. This one item may be the real deciding factor between a mediocre snapshot and a prize winning creation. This is especially true in the field of nature photography. An alert nature lover can "see" an interesting picture in a subject that thousands of other persons would pass by without even noticing.

A tuft of snow on a branch, a regiment of icicles on the eaves, grotesque ice formations around the piling on the lake front, these may mean intriguing winter studies to one eye, but to another merely something to make one shiver. A background of snow and a gnarled old tree may suggest a winter silhouette, or be "just another tree", depending on your viewpoint. Waterfalls, mountains, lakes, may produce "post card shots" or salon material, depending on methods of treatment such as composition, framing, shadows, cloud backgrounds, etc. An insect crawling along the sidewalk may be merely a "bug" to be crushed under the foot, or with proper close-up technique provide an insect fantasy that would rival a story book ogre. A withered leaf, a tuft of grass, flowers, an empty milkweed pod, a cluster of colorful fall fruits or berries, all offer challenges to your imagination and photographic skill.

The technique of "hyperclose-up" photography of nature objects opens up a new and inexhaustible field, one that is full of thrills and surprises. Extreme close-ups of insect "faces", the heart of a lily, a dandelion scattering its seeds, patterns on a butterfly wing, all reveal details and structures that are not ordinarily distinguishable. Here is a world that exists right before your eyes yet is rarely seen because your vision is more limited than that of your camera. Here again is an opportunity for creative imagination to produce pictures which will not only provide you with a lot of personal satisfaction but will also prove to be very acceptable in competitions and exhibitions.

In this realm of Nature Photography, the whole world is your field. Your choice of subjects is limited only by your ability to "see" a picture. If you are fortunate enough to be able to travel, well and good, for everywhere you go there will be scenes worthy of recording. If not, your repertoire will be somewhat different but by no means restricted. Just remember that many whole programs of Nature Photography have been built up of subjects literally taken "in your own back yard".

Nature Photography has a double impact on the photographer himself. It encourages you to cultivate a closer acquaintance with nature and learn more of her intimate secrets. Also it offers a challenge to your photographic ability, and poses ever new problems to keep you on the alert. If it will also train you to "see" pictures where you have never seen them before, you will find that you have discovered one of the most fascinating hobbies in the world.

this party's membership. He was enthusiastic. When a call was made for volunteer workers on the membership committee he responded at once, even volunteered to head the committee. Fine!

Then we had a slide contest. He had been using a camera for several years; had shown his slides to friends and small audiences and they had been highly praised. He was proud of his slides and apparently thought they should take top honors. We had an out of town judge. This judge rated this member's slides quite low, and one of them, the best, the judge took pains to comment upon at some length, calling attention to the good points and pointing out very obvious faults in the slide.

The member never came back! He was through. Judges were goats. He couldn't take constructive criticism. His feelings were hurt and they couldn't be assuaged. He liked his slides just like they were and his own little coterie of friends (none of them were camera club members) liked them. They patted him on the back and praised him and his ego was nursed.

Who was the loser? Certainly it was not the club.

Slide comment is criticism. If you can't take it, you're in a bad way. Criticism, as a word, is a harsh, sharp, antagonistic, evil-sounding thing. It immediately puts one on his guard. Evaluation, on the other hand, is a smooth, quiet, musical sounding word. It implies cool, calm calculation or deliberation over anything. Perhaps we should use it with reference to the consideration of slides.

Is stereo keeping pace with itself?
This may sound like one of them there now kinds of questions, but after watching a comparison of 2-D and 3-D color projection the other night it occurred to your editor that stereo may be near an impasse because of projection difficulties. If we are to gain converts from the ranks of regular photography we must strive for more light at the screen. This will require the ideas of manufacturer and amateur alike.

The comparison projection referred to occurred when a guest speaker at a club set up a 2-D slide projector and glass-headed screen near the stereo projector and screen, and on occasions when he had taken nearly the same shot in both mediums they were shown simultaneously.

Stereo Falls Short

It was amazing to hear many exclamations from the audience (all stereo workers) such as:

"The flat picture's got more depth!"

It was not a fair comparison of stereo and flat slides, because most of the shots had been poorly composed for stereo quality. But the flatties DID give a greater appearance of depth despite the parallax in the stereo slides that should have been the deciding factor. Why?

The answer lay in the amount of reflected light from the 2-D screen and resulting better detail, color and general feeling of liveness. Actually it was not a comparison of stereo and 2-D, only a comparison of their methods of projection, but the result was a psychological reaction of more depth in 2-D, and the result is all that counts. If a straight color worker feels he is getting a more "live" appearance in projection of the picture he now takes, what is there to convince him he should change to stereo?
And if photographers in other mediums don't come into stereo, won't we be at the saturation point when we have skimmed off the cream of photo newcomers? In short, won't stereo come to some kind of standstill unless a better method of projection (which must be its lifeblood if large numbers are to congregate and advance it by their very numbers) than the present metal surface-reflecting one is not provided?

We know that polarization, the best means so far for stereo projection, slashes the light and that the necessary metal-surfaced screen with its directional beams loses even more. But perhaps we have accepted this condition without too much thought concerning a better one. This opus is no complaint against existing stereo projectors, available or soon to be, but against the fact that there has been little or no attempt to change the system entirely.

Many of our members have experimented with rear projection, and it is the consensus

this is so far superior to reflected projection there is no comparison. Transmitted light is far better than reflected light (why transparencies are better than prints).
There is much less light loss and, as a result, better color, detail and definition, all of which add to the visual cues which bolster a stereo picture's parallax and add to its depth quality.

Rear projection has been impractical so far except on a small scale. Many members have made their own frosted-glass screens, but these must be kept fairly small because of weight and likely breakage, and must be stored in a container the full size of the screen.

How You Can Help

The final answer lies in a material that will accept rear projection while being placable so that it may be rolled up for storage and transportation, and light enough to allow for screens of large size.

Some plastic material appears most likely,
but there are problems in the polarization of plastics themselves when they are frosted.
Among our members there must be many who know enough about both polarization and plastics to present radically new thoughts on this stereo need. Manufacturers, at present putting most of their funds into efforts to improve the present projection system, would welcome such forward thinking, and your editor would be glad to pass your thoughts along to them.

Polarization of the plastic is not the only problem, but it is the greatest. Another important one would be need for short focal length lenses, so that projection space behind the screen need not be great. But the new David White projector has two-and-a-half inch lenses and the new TDC Project-Or-View table viewer is equipped with three-inch lenses. Other manufacturers would be quick to provide short lenses if rear projection came into wide use.

Anyway, it's something to consider seriously and help along if your knowledge of such matters allows. We can say we have the finest photographic medium, and know we're right in saying it, but unless we can convince the other fellow, we've lost the argument as far as he's concerned. And if we don't convince him when he takes a peek at stereo projection in club or exhibition we may have trouble getting him to give up his satisfying 2-D projection for single-person peep-hole viewing.

New Accessories

Manufacturers are outdoing themselves in providing better and better mounts. In this way, at least, the stereo worker has gained much from projection, which requires accurate mounting.

field, offering metal masks in the three window sizes and film spacing identical to Permamounts, Endes and Presto-Stereos.
They are named Triad, in keeping with Compo's new projector, are made of laminated aluminum, die cut and contain aligned pockets into which the films are slipped. They are marketed with and without micro-thin glass, but with no binders because of the division of opinion on the merits of metal frames as against tape.
The masks are the first to come with selfadhesive identification labels, if you except the printed Permamount binding tabs, and this alone is a worthwhile advance as gummed labels dry and separate from metal.

Also nearly ready for market is the David White metal mask, which the company already is using in some of its customer mounting and which will allow for horizontal movement of films to extend slide subjects toward or away from the audience.
Presto-Stereo masks also are now available in aluminum, and this mounting system has a new metal frame which may be used again and again.

The TDC Project-Or-View table viewer promises an advance in home viewing. It includes rear projection into an 8x10 inch black glass screen with an anti-reflection hood, and front projection onto a 50x50 metalized screen. A selecting tray-loading slide changer for stereo slides is promised as an early accessory.

Member Henry Powers, 6411 S. Canterbury Rd., Cleveland 29, O., has been spending all his time working out space-control approaches with his Trick Stereo Adaptor and now provides complete instructions for making every type of trick stereo slide. His adaptor permits as many as nine separate exposures while using the viewfinder to line them up, and consists of a plastic bracket for the Realist with a set of easily attached masks that will allow the same person or object to appear in one picture any number of times up to nine. When these masks are used and instructions followed for space control, there is practically no limit to the trick work that can be done by nearly any beginner.

Send Those Slides

Don't forget the three sets of slides you should send out between now and next month, to the Milwaukee and Rochester exhibitions and the PSA Stereo Division competition conducted by Fred Wiggins, Jr., 438 Meacham, Park Ridge, Ill. Take part in these activities; they spread stereo and help you in becoming a better stereographer. You also have until the last day of this month to enter a third international contest conducted by the Academy of Stereoscopic Arts and Sciences, 6112 Selma, Hollywood. Winning slides receive honors, merchandise awards and royalties on sales of duplicates.

Cleaning Slides

One of our most active members, who requests that his name not be used, has made use of his electric dishwasher and machine shop knowledge to perfect a slide glass-cleaning system. He has made a glass holder that fits into the dishwasher and serves as a drying standard for the glass until it is used. Swirl in the dishwasher requires that the glass be held rigidly but be open to water and detergent at top, bottom and ends. His holders were made from aluminum and plexiglass, but he points out construction would be difficult for the average hobbyist. Pictures of the item show it to be worthwhile, and if enough members (stereo or color) are interested in such a holder to use in their dishwashers and drop a line to the editor of this page, efforts will be made to interest a manufacturer in supplying them in quantity.

Stereo Slides for Vets

SD has been collecting slides for presentation in veterans' hospitals for some time on a regional basis, but the interest generated by efforts to help Member Ross A. Burley of Washington set up such programs for returning prisoners of war from Korea has jelled these regional activities into a national program. SD Chairman Frank Rice has appointed George Towers, 19635 Rogge, Detroit 34, Mich., national chairman of the collection committee. More will be carried on his plans in these columns, but meanwhile drop him a line and tell him what you can do to further this grand cause. The Color Division has set an example that will be difficult to equal, but we can do it if everyone—and that especially means YOU—does his share. Will you please help?

Contest Winners

Fourteen honors were awarded in the first Stereo Division slide contest, in which 36 members submitted 144 slides. The judges were Lucille Kosinske, Robert L. McIntyre, APSA, and Ted Lewis of Chicago. The next contest, under the direction of Fred T. Wiggins Jr., 438 Meacham, Park Ridge, Ill., has a deadline of Feb. 15. If you haven't been entering these competitions, you should. They help stereo, and they'll help you do better 3-D work. There is no cost for Stereo Division members, but return postage should be included with your slides.

Stanley A. Parke of Chicago, who has made quite a name for himself with his trick slides, placed first in the November contest to receive the silver medal. Award ribbons went to Victor Pagel, Milwaukee; A. E. Phillips, Waterloo, Iowa, and Web C. Ray, San Angelo, Texas. Honorable mention ribbons were awarded to Henry C. Crowell, Winnetka, Ill.; Jos. Goldstein, Pittsburgh; Conrad Hodnik, Chicago; Mrs. A. H. Oehl, Winnetka, Ill.; Wm. Harold Oliver, Oakland, Calif.; Stanley A. Parke, Chicago; Guy Purdy, Veradale, Wash.; Dr. Frank E. Rice, APSA, Chicago; Jack Stolp, Rochester, and Leonard S. White, FPO New York.

task of getting from every chairman of past exhibitions their complete mailing lists, and now can offer such officials the names of every known stereo exhibitor plus the names of all Stereo Division members. This should be a great boon to those planning shows and in other ways wishing to reach active stereo workers.

Another item of importance to exhibition and contest chairmen is availability of compact and specially designed shipping cartons for four slides. This box first was used by the Chicago Lighthouse when Chairman George Blaha received slides in every size and description of container. He returned all slides in these new boxes, and if other exhibitions would follow suit it would not be long before there would be enough in circulation to insure greater ease of handling by those exhibitions, as slides would come in uniform containers.

These boxes are available to anyone from H. S. McCracken Co., 2640 S. Shields, Chicago 16, Ill., and sell (no fewer than 50 to a customer) for $52 a 1,000, $30 for 500, $7 for 100 and $4 for 50.

From Me to You

Your editor would like to give you the kind of reading matter in these columns you want to receive, but can only guess at what that is. How's about letting me in on the secret by dropping a card to the address listed at the top of this section, saying what you have liked and disliked in past issues? I'll break my neck (did I hear loud cheers?) trying to supply what you want if you'll only name it.

TECHNICAL DIVISION

GEORGE EHRENFRIED, APSA
33 Center St., Brookline, Mass.

The 1953 Traveling Print Show of the Technical Division has recently been assembled and is ready to go, it was announced by TD's Exhibitions Committee. This year's show consists of 29 outstanding selections from the Ninth Open Exhibit of Technical Photography, which some of you saw last August at Los Angeles. You can get this show for your school or technical organization by writing William Crain, the committee chairman, whose address is Bldg. 6A, Kodak Park, Rochester, N. Y. All it costs you is the price of shipping from your town to the next one. Try and give plenty of latitude in respect to the date of your exhibit—scheduling this show and routing it all over the country can be quite a headache for him.

PSA members, PLEASE don't send your questions on photography to me. I have been receiving requests for information on titling lantern slides, Ektachrome processing formulas, underwater photography, etc. from people who must think I am on the T.D. Photographic Information Committee. Write down the chairman's address now, if you think you may need it. He is Don J. Mohler, Nela Park, Cleveland 12, Ohio. Try and send him definite questions that have definite answers. People who ask for long bibliographies on various subjects may be disappointed, for none of the committee members are librarians.

To judge from the absence of meeting notices coming this way, most of the Technical Sections must be as dead as logs in a swamp. Come on you birds, let us know what you're doing! It doesn't take much time to type one more address on an envelope and stick a notice in! Boston's November meeting featured Luis Marden, photographer and writer for the National Geographic Magazine, which uses miniature slides almost exclusively nowadays as originals for its published color pictures. Mr. Marden is quite a Leica enthusiast; wild horses could not separate him from his wide-angle Summaron lens.

A lively group of camera fans, whose operations would interest the TD members, is the group which takes cave pictures for the National Speleological Society. This organization takes its photography very seriously, holding each year an international salon of cave photography, with over 100 entries and prominent judges. About half the entries are from overseas, and a large fraction of the pictures shown are scientific in subject matter. PSA members in western Pennsylvania should watch for this year's salon, which takes place in Pittsburgh, probably in the Carnegie Museum, in April.

Cave photography is one of the most difficult and demanding forms of amateur camera work, requiring super-compact and super-rugged equipment, as well as complex and carefully balanced types of lighting, often with many flash bulbs. One of the leaders in this field was the late Duane Featherstonhaugh, of Duaneburg, N. Y., who died in 1952. A photographer and writer for the Associated Press, he was author of "Press photography with the Miniature Camera" and "Photography for All" as well as many journal articles on photography, nature, and history.

Board Meeting

The annual meeting of the 1953-1954 term of the Board of Directors met in New York on November 14th, and here are the names of those present:

A. M. Armstrong	T. T. Holden
J. A. Bernstein	M. H. Louis
D. B. Eisenhardt, Jr.	P. B. Maples
F. W. Fox, Jr.	H. A. McDonough
Mrs. Barbara Green	J. G. Mulder
N. Harkness (Presiding)	Mrs. C. B. Phelps, Jr.
C. Heller	Paul J. Wolf
J. R. Hogan	H. Younan

Past minutes and financial statements were approved and various reports were given in brief. Many of these have been or will be published in the Journal and all are on file at Headquarters. In the President's report, great stress was placed on the tremendous amount of work now being accomplished at Headquarters and the need for improved office machinery and a new billing system.

Principal objectives now facing the Society were changes in the Technical Division setup to provide for wider activity, Student Membership plan, the work of the Charter Committee and a detailed plan for Zone Directors and District Representatives.

Having received the final report of the Los Angeles convention, the Board voted (Action 489) to express the thanks of the Officers, the Directors and the Society to M. M. Phegley, General Chairman, his Committee and the various groups whose efforts made possible the success of the 1953 PSA Convention at Los Angeles.

In Action 491, it was unanimously voted to express the thanks of the Board to Treasurer Heller and the Finance Committee under the Chairmanship of Mr. John Magee for the success of their fiscal policies over the past years.

The thanks of the Board was also extended to Mrs. Barbara Green, retiring Chairman of the National Lectures Program, and to John R. Hogan for his unselfish devotion to the Picture of the Month.

After discussion of the problems facing the Public Relations Committee and the steps necessary to carry its work to a successful conclusion, the Board voted (Action 495) "that any and all contacts by Society, Divisional and Committee officials with the press or organized groups and societies must be cleared through the Public Relations Committee. Matters classified as strictly local are excepted."

The Board then approved the appointments of the Committee Chairmen and Committees as listed in the 1954 Directory.

In Action 498, the Board approved an amendment to Art. XI, Sec. 3, to read: "Organization. Each national Division shall be governed by Divisional officers and an Executive Committee. The Divisional officers shall be a Chairman, Vice Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer. The duties of Secretary and Treasurer may be combined in a Divisional Secretary-Treasurer. The Divisional officers shall be nominated and elected by the membership of the Division, under procedure established by the Board, for a term of two (2) years.

The Divisional Executive Committee shall be composed of the Divisional officers, immediate past Chairman, and Committee Chairmen to a limit of not more than twenty-five (25) and in addition may also have, at the option of the foregoing officials, two (2) representatives from each Section or Chapter elected in even years for a term of two (2) years. At the time a new Division is established, the Divisional officers and Executive Committee shall be appointed by the President with the approval of the Board, to serve until the subsequent Divisional election."

In Action 499, it was voted to change Art. IX, Sec. 3, Par. 2, to read: "The Annual Meeting of the Board shall be held each year at the Annual Convention. Otherwise the Board shall meet at the call of, and at times and places designated by, the President. All meetings of the Board shall constitute closed sessions, but shall be open to members of the National Council upon application, and to others by invitation."

In Action 500, it was voted to change Art. XI, Sec. 2, to read: "Section 2. Membership and Fees. Members of Divisions must be members of this Society. Membership in Divisions shall be voluntary. With the approval of the Board, Divisions may impose membership fees, which shall be additional to the membership of this Society."

The Board then approved the outline of activities and the Articles of Agreement and the Charter for the Chapters Committee. The plans, as submitted by Harry Goldstein's temporary committee for the Student Membership activity, were discussed and the Board approved the appointment of an Operating Committee which was requested to draw concrete schedules and definite working plans, to be submitted to the Board for final approval. The Board also approved in outline the tentative plans for the work of District Representatives and their reporting to the Board through Zone Directors.

In Action 501, it was resolved:

"that the Secretary be requested to express to Mrs. Jack Wright the sympathy of the Society and its Board of Directors, and its appreciation of Mr. Wright's distinguished and unselfish service to photography in general and this Society in particular."

In its final action of the day, at 5:30 P.M., the Board referred the Camera Club Rebate plan back to the Committee to give consideration to regulations which now adversely affect some portion of the membership. Their revision will be reported later.

Graflex $10,000 Contest

March 1 is closing date for the 1954 Graflex Photo Contest. Two new classes have been added, and there is no longer a special class for color. Color and black-and-white pictures will be judged together.

The Teen-Age, Non-Professional, Professional and Press classes are as before. The top prize in Teen-Age is $200, followed by $150, $100 and five of $50 each. The other three and the new "American Scene" class have a $500 top prize, with $300, $200 and five $100 prize.

The new "American Scene" class should show what America means to the entrant. It can be patriotic, scenic, chesecake, almost any subject that typifies America.

A new category "Magazine Assignment" is designed for picture sequences in black-and-white or color that would be suitable for national magazine use and will be judged by a group of editors who will also review all entries for possible publication. There will be six equal prizes of $500 each in this class and entries must consist of from 8 to 20 story-telling photographs of any subject, suitably captioned.

In all cases model releases must be attached to the entry, where such release would be required, and prints not having the release will not be judged. All pictures must have been made with a Graflex camera, which includes the Graphic, Graflex, Ciro, Giroflex and Graflex 22.

Prints must be at least 8x10 and mounted on 16x20 salon boards. Negatives must be available to Graflex on loan for 90 days.

Change of Address

A new postal regulation requires your Postmaster to return to Headquarters only the address portion of your Journal envelope if you move without notifying Headquarters of your change of address in time to change your stencil. To supply replacement copies in such cases would require our printing about 350 extra copies a month, an expensive procedure.

Starting with this issue, Headquarters will not supply replacement copies of Journals which are lost for this reason. The single copy price of $1 will apply. You can avoid this charge if, when you hand your postman a change of address notice, you write on it "Forwarding postage for 2nd and 4th class matter guaranteed." An instruction of this type will spare you the 3rd class advertising folders but assure your receiving all your magazines and parcel post packages. Your old postman will send a notice of the postage required for forwarding, you send him stamps and he will mail it to your new address.

Be sure you notify Headquarters whenever you move, as far in advance as possible, and give your old and new addresses. Your stencil is filed by city and knowing your old address makes location a simple task.

Movie Scripts

(from p. 29)

but don't expect the film editor to be as careful. As stated earlier in this series, few pictures look on the screen as they seemed in the script. If he changes a few scenes around, or eliminates some entirely, it is because, after screening his first rough print, he has found something that seems quite dull on the screen, or doesn't give the effect you were after. He has experimented with a change or two and found they improved the film. Usually you will agree, and be glad to see the change made, for the better the picture can be made, no matter who gets the credit for the change, it will be to your advantage in every way.

Script writing for motion pictures is a large, complex, never-ending effort. In these three articles we have tried to help the beginner turn out something that will be acceptable to the audience. Let the Editor of the Journal know if you want more on the subject.

Slide Maker's Dream

I dreamt I was an angel with a camera of gold,
With lenses ground from diamond blocks, most brilliant to behold.
My shutter was the twinkle of the stars of Gemini;
My diaphragm was Saturn's rings, set at infinity.
The sun I used for spot-light and I filled in with the moon.
For flash bulbs I used shooting stars with which the heavens are strewn.

The saints of old a hundredfold were models for me there,
And angels fair with golden hair posed on the Golden Stair.

The "hoary seers of ages past" I photographed in state,
And little cherubims at play around the Pearly Gate.
I visited the Milky Way and shot the stars at night;
I rode on fiery comets and I used their tails for light.

I sent my slides to great salons where they were each projected;
Then I came down to earth again, for they were all rejected.

It appears to me, Jack, that two spots on a slide might confuse the projectionist, which could account for this trick. And then, there are still people who don't spot their slides, believe it or not! I've met people who didn't know what the spot was for!

I would suggest an alternate idea. For fifteen cents the exhibition committee can buy a grease pencil, red in color, that will be visible in the weakest light. There is plenty of space over the mask where the number can be written, and it can be wiped off easily with tissue or cloth. The vote could also be recorded with a grease pencil if that would help.

at our regular club exhibits as well as at our Annual International. At our monthly club exhibits we have a panel of twelve club members as judges, and use five judges each meeting. Judges are rotated through the year. With this constant training and experience in judging year after year, our club feels we have found a good method of judging. The judges for our International Exhibit are selected from and by our judging panel. Every six months our club holds a judging panel election. These elections are votes of confidence and are taken by secret ballot.

We in the Minneapolis Color Photo Club feel fortunate in having this voting machine and are indebted to the late Frank Jacobsen who designed and built it. We also feel indebted to the First El Camino Real Color Slide Exhibit whose voting machine and description was the inspiration for our machine. The writer will be glad to answer any questions in greater detail.

show a real photographic exhibit right in its own club rooms, or in your local library or art museum. The only requisite is that your club be a member of the PSA and be affiliated with the Pictorial Division.

The International Exhibits service has available sixteen outstanding print sets, all from far distant countries. Exhibits are available to you from China, Australia, Mexico, Holland, India, Japan, Italy, Sweden and Switzerland. The photographs are by the outstanding pictorialists of each of these countries, and you have the opportunity to see and study the original prints—and they are really gorgeous.

If you wish to present a program that is different, as well as interesting and educational, have your club secretary or your program chairman write for one of these fine print collections. Just drop a note to Orlin Gollnick, 354 S. 23rd Street, La Crosse, Wisconsin. Tell him the dates you have open and list two or three of the countries above mentioned, in the order of preference, and your request will be promptly acknowledged. There is no service charge to clubs that are members of the Pictorial Division. If your club is a member of the PSA, but not affiliated with the Pictorial Division, just enclose one dollar with your request and we will see that your membership in the Division is recorded.

VIEWS AND REVIEWS

BY THE DIGEST EDITOR

Creation and Plagiarism

Most of those who are serious workers in photography have reached this stage of development because there is a great deal of creative satisfaction from making a pictorial picture. But every now and then, it seems, there are those who are not willing to put forth the effort all creative activity demands, and who short cut by plagiarizing.

Probably I am aware of it more right now because within the past three weeks, two such cases have come to my attention.

One was the reproduction of a humorous picture, the other was deliberate use of a negative circulating in a Salon Workshop group.

Of course, imitation is the sincerest form of flattery—but what of the imitator? How can he possibly live with himself, knowing that he has committed deliberate plagiarism? How can he accept the plaudits of others, when he knows it was not his idea in the one case, or his basic work in the other? How can anyone stand in the footprints of any other photographer and live with himself?

Creative photography—truly creative photography is a joy. There is the hope when the film is exposed that some of the feeling, the mood, the beauty of the scene can be conveyed to the film. And when we discover that this beauty, mood, feeling, is reproduced in the print we have made—the feeling of accomplishment—the feeling of joy which comes at that moment, nothing can surpass.

In any creative endeavor—music, poetry, painting, photography, there will always be those who seek the plaudits of the crowd and who will go to any ends (yes, even to the deliberate use of another's negative) to achieve that.

But, thank God, there are also those who do as one of the members of my portfolio did when he wrote, "I had the camera all set up and ready to take the picture, but it looked just like your picture . . . so I put my camera away without making an exposure, for that picture belonged to you."

Yes, creative photography belongs to the person who creates it. We cannot help but be influenced by the pictures we have seen, by the life we have lived, by the experiences we have had, but deliberately copying the work of another and claiming it as our own degrades not only the one who does it, but photography as a whole.

For when we truly create a memorable picture, the joy of creative work will surpass any plaudits we receive, and we can truly say, "This picture is mine. I created it."

Creating Interest

The rank beginner shoots any subject that gets in front of his lens. His first goal is seeing something he has shot come to life on the screen. He is proud of his first reel and shows it to all of his friends, who seldom share in his enthusiasm.

Sooner or later he notices his friends don't rave about his efforts, and he becomes conscious of the fact that his efforts could be made more interesting.

How?

First, let's ask ourselves, interesting to whom? The immediate family and close relatives? Or our casual acquaintances, club friends, and so on?

I dare say no picture ever taken of a year old infant learning to walk was uninteresting to the baby's mother and father. It can be underexposed, out of focus, the camera tilted, and extremely jiggly, yet the proud parents will love every jiggle of it. And such scenes—for the immediate family—are never too long.

But what about casual friends? They simply cannot like such a film.

Now, here's the division point—and it is an important one for the beginner to learn and remember: Amateur movies are of two categories—one we show only to the immediate family and close relatives, and the other we show to—shall we say—the public in general.

Your family will love every inch of film you shoot of them—of vacations, picnics, and family events. Shoot and show. Don't bother to edit, if you don't want to. Keep such record films strictly for the family shelf, and don't EVER show them to anyone else, lest a curse be upon you.

Why not? Because they will be boring to anyone else. Who but parents can sit through two hours of candid shots of baby? Even if they are expertly photographed?

Could you sit through two hours of movies of that baby up in the next block whom you've only seen but twice? Remember how the proud parents begged you to see the shots of their brainless wonder, and how bored you were?

Why were you bored? Probably because there was too much footage of the little genius doing all the things little geniuses do at that precious age.

So, lesson one in this process of creating interest in movies is to never keep a subject on the screen so long that it becomes boring.

Perhaps you are one of the few who would like to shoot your family pictures so that they are interesting to outsiders as well as the family. And that is exactly the spot most of us find ourselves. We shoot vacation trips, week-end outings, family events around the house, and we like to show these films to our friends. Therefore, we want them to be interesting, (the films, that is.)

Lesson two is to have every scene properly exposed, properly focused, and well lighted. Friends don't like to make a guessing game out of your scenes, trying to make out what they are supposed to be.

Third, have everybody do something in the scene. You no longer have a Brownie in your hand. Don't stand grandma up in front of the roses and then say "Hold still now, watch the birdie?" That's gone—long gone when movies are being made. Tell grandma to smell one of the roses, then pick it, then pin it on her lapel, or at least do something with it. Action—action—in every scene.

Fourth, don't see how much film you can shoot on a subject. (Who does anyway with film prices what they are?) Make every foot count. Start just before the action, stop when it does.

If an important bit of action takes 15 seconds, don't shoot it all in one take from one angle. Change your camera location a couple of times—five seconds each, or so. After grandma has picked the rose, then move real close to her when she pins it on. Your audience can't stand a long scene, but they can take it cheerfully if it is broken up into three or four shots from different angles. Remember, a new angle of an old scene always gives a fresh approach.

Next, use lots of close-ups if you want interest. Magnified close-ups are something we never see in real life. The movie camera can give us greatly magnified images of commonplace subjects. Audiences are always interested in close-up views of almost anything, so use lots of close views.

Don't drag out any subject on the screen. In amateur movies, three minutes is about the maximum for any subject, unless it is an unusual one and presented in an exceptional manner. For example, you take a trip to Colorado and film the Royal Gorge, Pike's Peak and the climb to the top, Rocky Mountain National Park etc. Three minutes will cover any one of these nicely. More than this will tend to bore your audience, even though the subject is broken up into numerous short scenes.

Of course there is no hard and fast rule on this, but look how the professionals handle these things. A ten minute newsreel usually covers about five subjects, meaning two minutes for each. The amateur, because his tempo is slower, can go three, but shouldn't go much more than that without running the risk of having his audience suddenly remember reasons why they must leave early.

Title your films adequately. No one can be interested in your films if you don't tell them when, where, who, and what. Titles give a film that professional touch, and it is these touches that make your audience like what you show them and ask for more.

Probably half the interest in a film is created in its editing. This, you will remember from our discussion in the October Journal is the process of discarding the unwanted sections of film, and rearranging the usable scenes in their most pleasing order.

To keep interest at a maximum, don't show anything uninteresting. Don't show under or over-exposed shots. Throw them away at once. This is true of any scene which is technically imperfect.

After a scene or location has been established, cut all subsequent scenes just before the action starts, and again just after it stops. If you are one of those slide photographers who uses movie film, and you shoot reels of good film on still subjects—with no action—you have no business reading this column, for still scenes are best covered with still cameras. Interesting movies contain motion and action. You pay for the privilege of shooting action, so why not get your money's worth?

Your films will be more interesting if you keep like subjects together. Don't skip around. Edit all like scenes together. In that Colorado film we described earlier, show all of the Royal Gorge scenes as a unit, then go on to something else. Don't keep throwing a Royal Gorge scene at us every few minutes. It's too confusing. The same goes for eating scenes. Some vacation films I have seen show members of the party eating every few minutes. Some day I am going to be so bold as to tell the maker of such films that I know people eat on trips of that kind.

A close-up of freshly caught trout frying over an open campfire is fine, but once a trip is enough! PLEASE.

Once you show a bit of action of any kind, don't come back to it, unless it is so intended for comic purposes, such as a running gag which we will discuss in a later issue. Follow the rule of showing something new with every change of scene or locale.

Reaction shots add interest and give a film a genuine feel. Professional films always use them, and always will because they are a basic—and excellent—motion picture practice. Reaction shots are also called cut-away shots and refer to brief glimpses of what is going on around the main stage of action currently taking place. At a rodeo, include a few shots of the audience, a five-year-old in cowboy attire, a small boy peeking through a knot hole, and so on. These all add interest.

Now you can see there's nothing here you can't do with the ordinary family record film if you want to. All of the hints we have mentioned apply to any film. By following these suggestions you can make those baby pictures interesting to people who don't even know the baby.

THE PHOTOGRAPHIC SOCIETY OF AMERICA, INC.
PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA

DIRECTORY OF MEMBERSHIP

This list of members was prepared by PSA Headquarters as of January 1, 1953. Names and addresses are followed by a code indicating LIFE and CORNERSTONE MEMBERS, Divisional affiliation and month and year of joining PSA. When no Division letters appear, it means that Headquarters has no record of affiliation with a Division. A geographical index will be found at the back.

Every effort has been made to insure the accuracy of the listings, but your cooperation in checking your own name, address, and Division is earnestly requested. Errors can be corrected only with your help. Communications should be addressed to PSA Headquarters, 2005 Walnut Street, Philadelphia 3, Pennsylvania.

The code used is as follows:

—Cornerstone Member	N—Nature Division
—Life Member	J—Photo-Journalism Division
C—Color Division	P—Pictorial Division
M—Motion Picture Division	S—Stereo Division
	T—Technical Division

Because of space limitations, all miscellaneous memberships, subscriptions, etc., have been omitted.

Extra copies of this Directory Section, separately stapled, may be purchased by members only from PSA Headquarters, 2005 Walnut St., Philadelphia 3, Penna., at $1.00 payable with order.

Use of this Directory for sales solicitation is made without the approval or sanction either of PSA or of PSA JOURNAL. PSA Members are reminded that it is impossible to provide the convenience of a membership list without risking its use for sales or other commercial purposes. Such use constitutes no endorsement by PSA or by PSA JOURNAL of products or services thereby offered.

PSA Honors and Requirements

STATEMENT OF POLICIES

"PSA Honors are awarded in recognition of contributions to the advancement of the art and science of photography. Such contributions take many forms which may generally be divided into those resulting principally from proficiency and achievement and those primarily of a service nature. Since personal achievement alone does not necessarily contribute to the advancement of photography, it does not qualify the candidate unless combined with elements of service. (See the Fellowship and the Associateship.) On the other hand, service may contribute substantially to the advancement of photography even though the candidate's proficiency in the use of the medium may be limited. (See the Honorary Membership and the Associateship, category 11.) PSA Honors are not degrees of membership nor recognition of proficiency alone."

THE HONORARY FELLOWSHIP is the highest Honor awarded by the Society. It is awarded only for unique or outstanding contributions of major importance to photography. The unanimous approval of the Honors Committee and the unanimous approval of the Board is required and the number of living Honorary Fellows is limited to 25. Candidates need not be members of the Society.

THE HONORARY MEMBERSHIP is awarded for outstanding service to photography, particularly through organizational or similar work. Proficiency in the use of the photographic medium is not a requirement. It may be recommended by a three-fourths vote of the Honors Committee and requires a three-fourths vote of the Board for approval. Candidates need not be members of the Society.

THE FELLOWSHIP is awarded for outstanding contributions to the advancement of photography involving a high degree of proficiency and achievement combined with such elements of service as the dissemination of acquired knowledge by lecturing, judging, instructing, publishing of articles, papers, etc. Personal achievement alone does not qualify a candidate for this Honor. The Fellowship may be awarded by a three-fourths vote of the Honors Committee, to any qualified person who has been a member of the Society for at least three years prior to the date of the application. Except in unusual and especially meritorious cases, candidates should be Associates and have been active in the field for at least ten years.

THE ASSOCIATESHIP is awarded for material contributions to the advancement of photography, whether resulting primarily from proficiency and achievement or service alone. As in the case of the Fellowship, achievement must be combined with elements of service. The Associateship may be awarded by a majority vote of the Honors Committee to any person who has been a member of the Society for at least one year prior to the date of the application. Except in unusual and especially meritorious cases, candidates should have been active in the field for at least five years.

Examples of Qualifications In

The Various Fields of Photography

1-MONOCROME PICTORIAL (including portraiture) Since pictorial photography is closely allied with exhibiting and competitions, considerable weight will be given to the candidate's exhibition and competition record, awards for pictorial merit, promotion of salons and exhibitions, the judging of exhibitions, etc.

2-COLOR

As in the case of monochrome pictorial photography, weight will be given to the candidate's exhibition record, organization and promotion of salons and exhibitions, judging, etc. Mastery of creative design, composition and color harmony are important qualifications. Proficiency and achievement in the use of color photography in fields other than pictorial may be considered under this category or, if incidental, may be considered collateral in the field of major endeavor.

3-MOTION PICTURE

Exceptional ability in directing, producing, processing, editing, titling films and mastery of techniques for producing effects, accompanying sound, etc., will be considered, as well as any other contributions to the art and science of motion picture photography.

4-PHOTO JOURNALISM, Documentary and Other

Reportorial Photography Ability in this area as indicated by the publication of candidate's work in newspapers, magazines, trade journals, house organs, etc., as well as illustrations for books or publicity and public relations, will be considered.

5-NATURE

Weight will be given to the candidate's exhibition record, etc., but the inclusion of his work in museums of natural history, and the use of his pictures as illustrations for books, articles and lectures on nature as well as his scientific background are considered important.

6-PHOTOGRAPHIC RESEARCH and Development of Processes and Apparatus

The degree of responsibility for the initiating, directing and results of the research or development is considered the important factor in evaluating his qualifications in this category. This field includes the photographic aspects of photo-mechanical work. Published reports of work, listed as to title, date and place of publication as well as patents issued are considered indicative of the candidate's accomplishments.

7-SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL PHOTOGRAPHY

In this category achievements in the application of specialized photography to scientific, industrial and commercial fields will be considered. This includes photomicrography, medical photography, spectrography, astronomy, X-ray, high-speed photography and aerial photography. New applications of photography to the solution of problems are important. Weight will be given to papers published and patents granted.

8-PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHY

In this category achievements in professional work in creative, commercial, illustrative and portrait photography and the promotional or advertising type of industrial photography will be considered.

April 15 Deadline

Forms for Honors applications may be obtained by writing Headquarters, or from the Chairman of the Divisional Honors Proposal Committee. Do not write the Chairman or members of the Honors Committee for the forms.

Deadline for receipt of completed applications at Headquarters will be April 15, 1954 in order that all investigations may be completed in time for the Convention.

The application form is used as a negative to print copies for each committee member so it is very important to follow the instructions. DO NOT use blue ink, use black. If you type the form, back it up with a reversed carbon paper, carbon to back of form, so the image density is heavy enough to make a good print. Protect the back from smudging.

9-GRAPHIC ARTS

In this field creative work in the application of the photographic aspects of photo-mechanical reproduction by any process will be considered.

10-EDUCATION

Consideration will be given to the organization, supervision and teaching of photographic classes; the writing, publishing or editing of photographic publications; and similar educational activities.

11-ORGANIZATION AND PROMOTION of

Photographic Activities

The organization and direction of camera clubs, societies, exhibitions and other group activities and the dissemination of knowledge through lectures and writing for or editing local publications, arranging programs, etc., as well as noteworthy service to PSA will be considered as qualifications for the Associateship. Outstanding or unique service of a similar nature are qualifications for the Honorary Membership. Such service is also a collateral qualification for the Fellowship, which is awarded primarily for contributions to the advancement of photography through proficiency and achievement in the use of the medium.

THE HONORS COMMITTEE MAY IN ITS DISCRETION WAIVE ANY OF THE SPECIFIC REQUIREMENTS WHEN SUCH WAIVER IS NOT INCONSISTENT WITH THE OBJECTIVES OF THE SOCIETY AND ITS POLICIES. IT MAY ALSO AWARD HONORS OTHER THAN THOSE REQUESTED WHEN IT DEEMS THEM MORE APPROPRIATE TO THE QUALIFICATIONS OF THE CANDIDATE.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE PROPOSER

Before initiating an application for Honors on behalf of your candidate, consider seriously the responsibility you are assuming. Read carefully the contents of the application form, giving special attention to the statement of policy and the general statement of the qualifications required for the Honor requested. Only if you are convinced that the work and achievements of the candidate constitute a contribution to photography and qualify him for the Honor, should you proceed. To propose a candidate under any other circumstances is to do him a disservice. But your responsibility does not end here. You must present the facts in a clear and precise manner. Do not use flowery language nor resort to exaggeration, both of which lead to the suspicion of insincerity. First complete accurately the statement of the candidate's record. Then prepare your general statement in the form of a brief summary, stressing the phases of his work which, in your opinion, qualify him for the Honor. Try to give the Honors Committee a clear picture of the candidate's qualifications in the space provided. Attached material should not be necessary and is not generally circulated to the members of the Honors Committee, except in the case of applications for the Honorary Fellowship. Omit such evidence as prints, reprints of articles, scrap books, clippings, etc., unless they are requested.

It is also your duty to secure two endorsers who are members of PSA in good standing and who have a personal knowledge of the work and achievements of the candidate. Explain to them that they will be required to make an independent statement on a form which they will receive from PSA Headquarters, and make sure that they are willing to do so. Follow up the endorsers to make certain that they return their confidential statements to PSA Headquarters promptly upon receipt of the forms. Applications not supported by completed and signed Endorsers' statements will not be considered.

NOTE

At the time this issue of the Directory went to press several amendments passed by the Board of Directors at the 1953 Annual Meeting had not yet been acted on by the National Council as provided by Section 2 of Article XVIII. It is expected that the approval of the National Council will be forthcoming; publication to the entire membership was achieved in the January, 1954 issue of the Journal, and the Actions as reported are repeated herewith for the guidance of the membership. If the expected approval materializes, the changes will be included in the next printing of the Constitution and By-Laws of the Society.

"In Action 498, the Board approved an amendment to Art. XI, Sec. 3, to read: 'Organization. Each national Division shall be governed by Divisional officers and an Executive Committee. The Divisional officers shall be a Chairman, Vice Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer. The duties of Secretary and Treasurer may be combined in a Divisional Secretary-Treasurer. The Divisional officers shall be nominated and elected by the membership of the Division, under procedure established by the Board, for a term of two (2) years.

"The Divisional Executive Committee shall be composed of the Divisional officers, immediate past Chairman, and Committee Chairmen to a limit of not more than twenty-five (25) and in addition may also have, at the option of the foregoing officials, two (2) representatives from each Section or Chapter elected in even years for a term of two (2) years. At the time a new Division is established, the Divisional officers and Executive Committee shall be appointed by the President with the approval of the Board, to serve until the subsequent Divisional election."

"In Action 499, it was voted to change Art. IX, Sec. 3, Par. 2, to read: 'The Annual Meeting of the Board shall be held each year at the Annual Convention. Otherwise the Board shall meet at the call of, and at times and places designated by, the President. All meetings of the Board shall constitute closed sessions, but shall be open to members of the National Council upon application, and to others by invitation.'"

"In Action 500, it was voted to change Art. XI, Sec. 2, to read: 'Section 2. Membership and Fees. Members of Divisions must be members of this Society. Membership in Divisions shall be voluntary. With the approval of the Board, Divisions may impose membership fees, which shall be additional to the membership of this Society.'"

The PSA Traveler

Next year we hope to list in the Directory the names of PSAers who will volunteer to serve as information centers for their home localities. Perhaps you have a favorite spot you'd be willing to share with others, or you know the best time of day for natural features, or the best way to get to a good picture location. By volunteering your services you will probably also make many new friends among PSAers who travel. To enroll in this activity, send your name and your photographic interests to the Journal Editor.

ELECTION SCHEDULE

At the meeting of the Board of Directors on June 6, 1953, it was unanimously voted (Action 464) to establish a permanent schedule of fixed dates for all elections in the Society. Accordingly, the following schedule has been announced by the Board affecting the election of Division officers and District Representatives in even years and that of the National officers in odd years. Where the date given falls on Saturday or Sunday, it is interpreted to mean the following Monday.

Final date for nominations	December 15th (of the preceding year)
Journal publication	February issue
Last day for petition nominations	April 30
Mailing of ballots	May 15
Last day for receipt of ballots at Headquarters	June 15
Announcement of election results	June 30

It is the Board's expectation that the permanently fixed dates for these important events in the Society's operation will result in the elimination of past uncertainties and simplify the work of the various Nominating Committees.

How PSA Operates—Message For New Members Getting The Most Out Of Your Membership

Because this Directory is furnished to new members throughout the year and because there is some extra space available, we are using this opportunity to spell out some facts about PSA operation pending the issuance of the new Members Manual, which you may not see until you have been a member for a few months—as this is written the Members Manual is still in the works. So this piece serves as an interim advisor until you can get it all in detail.

PSA is an organization of people interested in photography at every skill level, but at the highest interest level. You may be a beginner or a scientist, no matter, there is a place in PSA for you.

Who runs PSA?

At this writing PSA has about 7500 members. They run it. Through elected officers who direct the work of a small group of employees needed to handle the day-to-day details of operating a far-flung organization.

The National Officers are elected from and by the membership every two years. The last election was held in 1953. At that same election the Zone Directors were elected, one for each time zone.

In even years the chairmen of the seven PSA Divisions and the District Representatives are elected. The Divisions represent the different spheres of interest in photography. The District Representatives are like Congress, they represent the PSA members in each state and Province of Canada, one to a state or more than one if there are more than 200 PSA members in a state. (Constitution, Article XII.)

The Election Schedule above refers to the election this year of Division Chairmen and District Representatives. Each Division has a nominating committee which has the duty of preparing a slate. This slate will be published. If a group of members have a different candidate to offer, they can submit a petition to Headquarters as specified in Section 5 of Article VII. If a petition is filed by the deadline date, Headquarters prepares a ballot and mails it to the membership, to everyone if a national office is at stake, to the members in one state if it is a District Representative. If no petition is filed by the day set (April 30) the nominees are considered to be elected and an announcement to that effect is made on June 30. The newly elected officers take their seats at the first annual meeting after the election. This may take place at an annual convention or at the Board of Directors meeting in the late Fall.

The practical running of PSA is largely in the hands of the Board of Directors. It is composed of the national officers, chairmen of divisions, chairmen of standing committees and the immediate past President. Most actions of the Board are immediately effective but certain actions having widespread effect and import must be submitted to the National Council for approval. The National Council consists of the Board and the District Representatives.

Most meetings are held by mail so that all have a chance to register their approval or opinion about subjects under discussion. The Board holds an in-person meeting four times a year at least, including a one or two-day session at the Convention.

If you as a member have problems, you can get the answer from your District Representative (many of them have state committees assisting), your Division Chairman, any of the National Officers, or if you are not certain, you can always write Headquarters which will forward your letter to the proper party.

Headquarters

Headquarters is a reality. PSA owns a four-story building in the heart of Philadelphia which houses the office, the extensive files and mailing machinery required for an organization which operates mostly by mail. It is staffed by the Executive Secretary and his assistants. Your name is kept on a permanent stencil and each month the envelope in which your copy of the PSA

Journal is mailed is addressed from that stencil. Each year your bill for dues is run off from the same stencil. If you belong to one or more Divisions which issue Bulletins, your stencil is coded with that information and your copy of the Bulletin is addressed to you.

Headquarters is in effect the Circulation Department of the Journal, so if you move your old and new addresses should be sent to Headquarters at the earliest possible moment so your stencil can be changed.

Divisions

There are seven Divisions in addition to the overall PSA organization. Each Division represents a special photographic interest. The names tell the story—Color, Photo-Journalism, Motion Picture, Nature, Pictorial, Stereo and Technical.

Each Division is headed by elected officers and an Executive Committee composed of the chairmen of operating committees of the Division.

You can join a Division at any time by notifying Headquarters and paying the dues of one dollar per Division. Your first Division membership is free with your annual PSA dues. (Two Divisions with a joint husband-and-wife membership.) As a member of a Division you can take part in its special activities, usually at no extra cost. For some special services there is a small charge to defray the costs such as postage.

Services

There are many services that PSA renders to its members without additional cost, or at a charge that barely covers the cost.

Basic service are the publications. Every member receives a copy of the PSA Journal each month. A copy is also sent to each member camera club for the use of its members. (Camera club members are not automatically members of PSA by reason of the club holding membership, nor are they entitled to PSA services on an individual basis.)

The second PSA publication is "Photographic Science and Technique" a quarterly scientific journal of great repute which is produced for PSA by the Technical Division and mailed to all TD members as well as to other members who request it.

Because many clubs are in remote areas where it is difficult to get well-known lecturers, PSA offers a National Lecture Program and a Recorded Lecture Program. The former provides in-person speakers by scheduling extensive tours in a way that keeps the cost low to each participating club. The recorded lectures are available to member clubs who have a slide projector and tape recorder. Many other services are to be found in the Members Manual.

Most of the Divisions also provide a variety of services for their members and also publish lists of services from time to time. Most of these services are free.

The Directory

The Directory is published as a part of the January Journal and extra copies are printed for distribution to new members who join after that time. All new members receive it as a part of their initial kit, except in the last months of the year prior to the issuance of the new Directory.
